

HHI Windows and Doors Supports Habitat for Humanity Through Habitat for Humanity of the Lowcountry?s 28th Annual Golf Tournament

September 22, 2025

BLUFFTON, SC - September 22, 2025 -

HHI Windows and Doors expressed its support for the 28th Annual Habitat for Humanity of the Lowcountry Golf Tournament, scheduled for September 29, 2025, at Oldfield Club in Okatie, South Carolina.

This sponsorship reflects HHI Windows and Doors? commitment to supporting community initiatives that focus on affordable housing and strengthening the Lowcountry region. Habitat for Humanity of the Lowcountry is a nonprofit organization serving Beaufort County and surrounding areas, working to address housing challenges by partnering with families to build safe and affordable homes. The organization strives to create opportunities for stability and progress in a region where rising housing costs and limited availability present ongoing challenges for many families.

Habitat for Humanity of the Lowcountry reported that support from players, sponsors, and silent auction donors during last year?s tournament provided enough funding to complete the organization?s 12th and 13th tournament-funded homes, both of which are now under construction in Ridgeland.

The annual golf tournament is one of Habitat?s leading fundraising efforts. The event brings together business leaders, residents, and community supporters who share an interest in expanding housing opportunities. Set against the backdrop of Oldfield Club along the Okatie River, the tournament blends competitive play with meaningful philanthropic support.

?Community isn?t just a buzzword we use at work?it is who we are. Habitat?s mission aligns perfectly with our values of building strong foundations, whether in homes or in people?s lives. We are honored to support their work,? says Richard Barron, owner of HHI Windows and Doors.

Beyond sponsorship, HHI Windows and Doors contributes to community resilience with impact-resistant windows, custom entry and patio doors, and services designed to enhance home protection against severe weather events, including hurricanes, when installed in compliance with South Carolina building codes.

The upcoming tournament will create opportunities for both seasoned and new golfers. In addition to golf play, participants will enjoy raffle prizes, awards, and a luncheon reception that highlights Habitat?s mission, honors its sponsors, and celebrates volunteer efforts. The event offers participants and supporters an occasion to contribute to an important cause while enjoying an engaging community experience.

As an ACE Sponsor, HHI Windows and Doors demonstrates how local businesses can support nonprofit efforts to address critical needs in the community. This partnership provides Habitat with resources to continue its mission of offering housing opportunities that promote safety and stability for families in Beaufort County and surrounding areas.

As the September 29 tournament approaches, HHI Windows and Doors looks forward to standing alongside Habitat for Humanity of the Lowcountry staff, fellow sponsors, golfers, and the public at Oldfield Club to recognize the value of collaboration in achieving community progress.
