Sharleen's Shower Accessories has launched a new product onto the Amazon marketplace, which are the company's shower caps for toddlers that are currently available in a pack of three. A spokesperson for the company released a statement about the new product, saying, "Our unique terry lined design helps to not only keep kids' hair dry, but prolong hair styles as well."

The company spokesperson explains that the soft terry lining helps to provide the ultimate in comfort, while the shower cap itself protects hair from getting wet. Sizes are recommended for children and toddlers aged two to seven, and the company states that the caps work best on children who don't have long hair.

"We designed them to be durable for a number of uses, and unlike those cheaper, plastic caps, our shower cap will not rip or tear, even with the most rambunctious of shower takers," states the company spokesperson.

Sharleen's Shower Accessories is now offering the child shower caps in three different floral designs, and those ordering soon will also receive a bonus natural sponge. Since their release, the children's shower caps have gained a near five star rating, which is quite a feat for a new product on the marketplace.

The company states that their goal is to offer consumer products at affordable prices, and only at the highest quality possible. The newly launched shower caps are designed to be rugged and last children through many showers, as opposed to cheaper plastic caps that tend to rip or tear after a few washings.

The company spokesperson states that Sharleen's shower caps are specifically designed to last and to be the most comfortable shower cap for kids. The company claims that their reasoning behind releasing this particular product is to make life a bit easier for parents by helping them to avoid children going outdoors with wet hair, which could result into sickness during the colder months.

Sharleen's shower caps for toddlers can be found exclusively on Amazon.com
