PuroClean of Redmond Owner Receives Prestigious Rainmaker Award at National Convention

October 15, 2025

October 15, 2025 -
Craig Hawkins, owner of PuroClean Of Redmond/Woodinville, has been recognized with the prestigious Rainmaker Award at the 2024 PuroClean International Convention. The annual award honors franchise owners who demonstrate exceptional business achievement while maintaining a strong dedication to their local communities.

The Rainmaker Award represents the highest level of recognition within the PuroClean network, celebrating franchise leaders who excel in both business operations and community service. Hawkins joins an elite group of franchise owners from across North America who received this distinction at the company's annual gathering of restoration professionals.

"Receiving this recognition reflects the incredible dedication of our entire team in serving families and businesses throughout the Redmond and Woodinville communities," said Craig Hawkins, owner of PuroClean of Redmond/Woodinville. "This award motivates us to continue raising the bar in property restoration services while strengthening our commitment to helping neighbors recover from unexpected disasters."

The award selection process evaluates franchise performance across multiple criteria, including operational excellence, customer satisfaction, community involvement, and contributions to the broader PuroClean network. Recipients demonstrate consistent growth in their markets while maintaining the high service standards that define the PuroClean brand.

PuroClean Of Redmond/Woodinville has established itself as a trusted resource for property restoration services throughout the region. The company provides 24/7 emergency response for water damage, fire and smoke damage, and mold remediation needs. Their team of certified technicians utilizes advanced equipment and proven restoration techniques to help residential and commercial property owners recover from disasters.

The recognition comes as the restoration industry continues to evolve with new technologies and methodologies for addressing property damage. Franchise owners who earn the Rainmaker Award are recognized for staying at the forefront of these developments while maintaining strong relationships with insurance providers, property managers, and other key partners in their communities.

"The Rainmaker Award winners exemplify what it means to be a PuroClean franchise owner," noted Hawkins. "We share knowledge and best practices across the network, which ultimately benefits every customer we serve. This collaborative approach strengthens our ability to respond effectively when disasters strike."

PuroClean of Redmond/Woodinville specializes in comprehensive restoration services, including water extraction, structural drying, smoke and soot removal, and mold remediation. The company serves both residential and commercial clients, working closely with insurance companies to streamline the claims process and minimize disruption for property owners. Their certified professionals use EPA-registered disinfectants and state-of-the-art equipment to restore properties to pre-damage conditions.

As a PuroClean franchise, the Redmond/Woodinville location is part of a network of more than 500 independently owned and operated restoration companies across North America. The franchise system provides ongoing training, technical support, and operational resources that enable local owners to deliver consistent, high-quality restoration services to their communities.
