March 02, 2016 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

On Time Website Traffic, an SEO firm based in Atco, New Jersey, has announced a new platform to target customers. The company states that streaming video ads can be used to provide an overview for a company's detail profile.

The new SEO solution involves using the Facebook platform as a means of targeting guests and turning them into customers. A one-time viewing of services, the company says, may simply not be key to gaining customers, and more may be needed in order to see results that companies want to see.

Marcus Brown, founder of On Time Website Traffic, says, "This new service is specifically designed using Facebook ads as a re-targeting solution to drive traffic to your website."

To show potential clients just how the re-targeting platform can work, the company is providing a video sample that encompasses the solution.

Many companies are currently using Facebook to target customers, but Brown states that more may need to be done in order for businesses to see true results. "You can't just assume that people are going to go to your website just because you have a Facebook page," he states. "There are many things to be considered from an SEO perspective before businesses will see true results from this social media platform."

On Site Website Traffic provides SEO solutions to small and medium sized businesses, including backlinks, web design, and social media marketing. Their new Facebook service platform is part of their overall search engine optimization service for businesses, and one that Brown states is sure to help companies see better results from their efforts.

Facebook is a multi-billion user platform, which Brown states can be very effective in driving traffic to websites, provided businesses are using the right strategies with their social media solutions.

The company is currently offering a wide range of SEO services and states that they can consult with businesses that feel they are not getting enough from their current search engine optimization campaign. Those interested can learn more by visiting On Time Website Traffic on their official website or by contacting them through their own social media pages.
