

CollaVita Collagen Announces Commitment to Quality Standards Through Third-Party Certifications

October 17, 2025

CHANTILLY, VA - October 17, 2025 -
CollaVita Collagen today announced its position in the wellness supplement market through its comprehensive suite of third-party certifications and quality standards that set new benchmarks for collagen peptide production. The company's hydrolyzed bovine collagen peptides undergo extensive testing and certification processes, including verification by Eurofins USA, to ensure consistent purity and potency for consumers seeking reliable wellness supplementation.

The Chantilly, Virginia-based company has established partnerships with Europe's largest producer of edible bovine gelatin and collagen peptides, operating facilities that adhere to FDA, GMP, BRCGS, and ISO 14001, 9001, and 45001 manufacturing standards. This comprehensive certification framework demonstrates the company's commitment to product purity, manufacturing excellence, environmental responsibility, and workplace safety.

"Our approach to collagen supplementation centers on transparency and verifiable quality standards that consumers can trust," said Enes Demirel, General Manager of CollaVita Collagen. "Every batch of our hydrolyzed collagen peptides undergoes rigorous third-party testing to ensure we deliver consistent, pure products that meet the diverse dietary and ethical needs of our global customer base."

CollaVita Collagen sources its Type I and III collagen exclusively from grass-fed, pasture-raised bovine, free from unnecessary hormones or antibiotics. The hydrolyzation process ensures optimal bioavailability, providing 18 essential amino acids while maintaining strict allergen-free standards. The products contain no gluten, dairy, sugar, soy, additives, preservatives, or artificial flavors, making them compatible with Paleo and Keto dietary approaches.

The company's commitment extends beyond product quality to encompass ethical and sustainable practices. CollaVita partners exclusively with suppliers who uphold humane animal welfare standards and responsible land use practices. The company has integrated sustainable waste management practices throughout its operations, minimizing environmental impact while maintaining production excellence.

The company maintains an active presence on social media platforms, with CollaVita Collagen on Facebook serving as a primary channel for consumer engagement and education about collagen supplementation. Through these platforms, the company shares information about the structural support collagen provides to the body's natural processes.

A significant differentiator for CollaVita is its dual Kosher and Halal certification, addressing the needs of diverse religious and cultural communities often underserved in the wellness supplement market. This inclusive approach reflects the company's mission to make premium collagen supplementation accessible to consumers regardless of their dietary restrictions or lifestyle choices.

"The wellness industry needs transparency and accountability, which is why we've pursued the most stringent certifications available," added Demirel. "Our customers deserve to know exactly what they're consuming and how it's produced, from sourcing through final packaging."
