Your Energy Pros, LLC Introduces Comprehensive Solar Energy System Services Program for Homeowners

October 27, 2025

LA MESA, CA - October 27, 2025 -
Your Energy Pros, LLC, a solar energy engineering firm based in La Mesa, California, has introduced the Energy System Services Program, a comprehensive membership plan designed to address the growing maintenance and repair needs of residential energy systems throughout Southern California.

The program provides homeowners with centralized management for solar, battery storage, HVAC, electric vehicle charging, roofing, pool pumps, and water heating systems through a single point of contact. This development comes as California electricity rates have increased nearly 50 percent* since 2020, according to recent reports, making system efficiency and maintenance increasingly critical for controlling energy costs.

"Homeowners with solar and battery systems often struggle to find reliable support when their original installer goes out of business or when systems need maintenance beyond warranty coverage," said Steve Luck, a spokesperson from Your Energy Pros. "Our program provides engineering expertise and a vendor-neutral approach that ensures systems operate at peak efficiency while protecting homeowners from unexpected repair costs."

The Energy System Services Program provides each member full access to dedicated energy advisors that will coordinate all system maintenance, troubleshooting, and repairs. The program, comprised of complimentary and paid services, covers Solar Repair and maintenance, including monitoring reinstatement, panel cleaning, and warranty assistance. Also covered are battery system services that encompass setup, optimization, warranty issues, and guidance for energy revenue programs. Coverage extends to HVAC performance evaluations and repairs, water heater service and replacement, electric vehicle charger installations, pool pumps, and roofing services, including thermal barrier integration.

The membership structure offers expedited response times for service requests, assistance with both warranty and non-warranty system issues, and up to 10 percent discounts on billable services and costs for annual members. The program addresses a significant gap in the market for orphaned solar systems whose installers have gone out of business, leaving homeowners without technical support or warranty assistance. With the December 31st, 2025 expiration of the 30% federal investment tax credit for residential solar and battery systems, an increasing number of solar installers will likely close , further emphasizing the need for Orphaned system support.

Your Energy Pros brings over 60 years of combined engineering experience to the program, operating from a technology and company-neutral position that allows for unbiased recommendations based solely on system performance and homeowner needs. The firm's client centric focus combined with its engineering - first approach differentiates it from sales - driven companies by focusing on long - term system optimization rather than equipment sales.

As Southern California homeowners have and continue to invest heavily in solar, battery storage, and electric vehicle infrastructure, the launch of this comprehensive Energy System Services Program reflects a growing demand for professional energy system management and support. This is especially true as California homeowners suffer from some of the highest electricity rates nationally. Proactive ongoing maintenance and optimization of existing systems become increasingly important for maximizing return on investment, utility savings and energy independence.
