

Promeza MG Expands Speaking Engagements Following Success of NDE Book "Injection of Faith"

October 15, 2025

VALENCIA, CA - October 15, 2025 -
Promeza MG announces increased demand for speaking engagements featuring author and registered nurse Raul Meza, whose book "Injection of Faith" has resonated with audiences seeking inspiration from real-life medical experiences and near-death accounts.

"The response to these real-life accounts has been overwhelming," said Raul Meza, author of "Injection of Faith". "Medical professionals appreciate the clinical perspective combined with the spiritual elements that many patients experience during critical moments. These stories bridge the gap between medical science and the profound experiences that occur in intensive care settings."

The book, which draws from Meza's 32 years of critical care nursing experience, has led to invitations for speaking engagements at nursing conferences and churches throughout the United States, as well as international tours in Mexico and Argentina. The collection features true stories from the intensive care unit, including accounts of medical miracles and patient-reported Near Death Experience Stories (NDE's) that have captivated both medical professionals and general audiences.

The expansion of speaking opportunities reflects growing interest in understanding near-death experiences from a medical professional's viewpoint. Nursing conferences have particularly embraced Meza's presentations, which combine clinical expertise with accounts that challenge conventional understanding of consciousness during medical crises.

Raul Meza brings a unique perspective as both a healthcare professional and author, having witnessed extraordinary events during his extensive career in critical care. His book compiles these experiences into narratives that explore the intersection of medical care and spiritual experiences, particularly focusing on patients who have reported NDE's during their time in the ICU.

To accommodate diverse audiences, Promeza MG offers both English and Spanish versions of the book, with "Inyección de Fe" serving Spanish-speaking communities. Meza conducts presentations in both languages, enabling him to reach broader audiences across the Americas.

The speaking engagements typically feature stories from the book that highlight remarkable recoveries, unexplained medical phenomena, and patient accounts of experiences during critical medical events. These presentations have proven valuable for healthcare professionals seeking to understand patient experiences beyond clinical parameters, as well as for general audiences interested in exploring questions about consciousness and spirituality in medical settings.

Promeza MG, through its publishing division Promeza Publishing, continues to support the distribution of "Injection of Faith" while coordinating Meza's expanding speaking schedule. The company has established itself as a platform for sharing transformative medical narratives that offer both professional insights and personal inspiration.

The book remains available through multiple channels, including digital formats through major online retailers, making these accounts accessible to readers worldwide. As demand for Meza's speaking engagements continues to grow, Promeza MG anticipates further expansion of its outreach efforts to bring these compelling medical narratives to new audiences across healthcare and faith-based communities.
