

Atticus Injury Law Founder Recognized Among Nation's Top 40 Under 40 Personal Injury Lawyers

October 20, 2025

Irvine, California - October 20, 2025 -
Atticus Injury Law founder Atticus Wegman has earned recognition among the nation's Top 40 Under 40 lawyers, a distinction that highlights his decade-long track record of securing substantial settlements and verdicts for injured clients across Southern California.

The honor, which recognizes exceptional legal professionals under the age of 40, acknowledges Wegman's success in representing clients against major insurance companies and multinational corporations. His achievements include securing an $8.6 million settlement for a Caltrans inspector injured near the 10 freeway in Los Angeles County, as well as jury verdicts of $2.4 million and $1.5 million in separate cases.

"This recognition reflects our firm's commitment to treating every client like family and ensuring they receive the compensation they deserve after suffering injuries due to someone else's negligence," said Atticus Wegman, founder and trial attorney at Atticus Injury Law. "Each case represents a person whose life has been disrupted, and we approach every situation with the dedication and attention it deserves."

As a personal injury lawyer with offices in Orange County, San Bernardino, Riverside, and Los Angeles, Wegman has built his practice on what he describes as a client-first approach. His firm handles a comprehensive range of injury cases, including car accidents, truck accidents, construction zone incidents, dog bites, slip-and-fall injuries, product liability, negligent security, and workers' compensation matters.

The Top 40 Under 40 recognition adds to Wegman's growing list of professional accolades. In 2019, he received the Young Gun Award from the Orange County Trial Lawyers Association and was previously named to the Los Angeles Daily Journal's prestigious list of Top 40 Under 40 lawyers.

"The legal system can be overwhelming for individuals facing powerful insurance companies and corporate defendants," Wegman noted. "Our role is to level the playing field and ensure that injured individuals have strong representation throughout the legal process."

Wegman's path to becoming a personal injury lawyer in Irvine and throughout Southern California began with his education at Fresno State University, where he earned his Bachelor of Arts degree. He continued his studies at the University of Iowa, obtaining a Master of Arts degree, before earning his Juris Doctor from Chapman University's Fowler School of Law. His early career included internships with the United States Bankruptcy Court and the Orange County Superior Court, experiences that provided valuable insight into the judicial system.

Atticus Injury Law maintains offices throughout Southern California to serve clients across the region. The firm focuses exclusively on personal injury matters, allowing its legal team to concentrate their expertise on securing favorable outcomes for injured clients. With nearly a decade of experience in personal injury law, Wegman continues to advocate for individuals who have suffered injuries in accidents ranging from motor vehicle collisions to premises liability incidents.
