

Mogy Law NC Expands Legal Services Following 8,864 Traffic Crashes in Durham County

October 24, 2025

RALEIGH, NC - October 24, 2025 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Mogy Law NC has expanded its legal services in response to Durham County traffic data showing 8,864 crashes that resulted in 24 fatalities and 3,312 injuries during the most recent reporting period.

The Durham-based personal injury firm announced the service expansion this week, citing increased demand for legal representation as accident rates continue climbing throughout the region. The expansion includes additional case management resources and extended consultation availability to accommodate the growing number of accident victims seeking legal assistance.

"The 8,864 crashes recorded in Durham County represent thousands of individuals facing medical bills, insurance claims, and legal complexities," said Eric Mogy, founding attorney at Mogy Law NC. "Our expansion allows us to respond more effectively to this volume while ensuring each case receives the attention it requires for proper evidence preservation and claim documentation."

North Carolina's contributory negligence doctrine presents particular challenges for accident victims. Under this law, individuals found even minimally at fault may be barred from recovering compensation. This legal framework requires accident victims to work with an experienced and compassionate car accident lawyer who understands state traffic law complexities.

Accident victims face several critical steps immediately following a crash that can significantly impact their ability to pursue compensation. Legal experts recommend photographing the accident scene from multiple angles, obtaining witness contact information, maintaining comprehensive medical records, documenting all physical injuries as they develop, and avoiding recorded statements to insurance adjusters without legal representation.

The firm's expanded services address various motor vehicle accident types, including car collisions, motorcycle crashes, truck accidents, bus incidents, rideshare accidents, and hit-and-run cases. Each category presents distinct legal challenges requiring specific expertise in insurance negotiations and potential litigation.

Mogy Law NC operates on a contingency fee basis, structuring its services to provide maximum compensation for lower fees through a 25 percent contingency arrangement. This fee structure means clients incur costs only upon successful case resolution.

The expansion comes as insurance companies increasingly employ aggressive tactics to minimize claim payouts. Industry data suggests that accident victims who secure legal representation within the first week following an accident typically achieve more favorable outcomes than those who delay.

"Evidence preservation remains the most critical factor in building strong legal cases," added Mogy. "Physical evidence deteriorates, witnesses become harder to locate, and memories fade. Our expanded services ensure accident victims can access immediate legal guidance when it matters most."

The firm's expansion includes enhanced case evaluation processes and increased staff availability to handle the rising caseload. These changes reflect broader industry adjustments as legal practices adapt to increasing traffic accident rates and evolving insurance company strategies.

Mogy Law NC was founded by attorneys Eric Mogy and Chris Anglin. The firm specializes in personal injury cases throughout Durham and surrounding North Carolina communities, with particular focus on motor vehicle accident representation.
