

The Light System Issues Statement of Support for Center Owner in EES Lawsuit

October 22, 2025

Miami, Florida - October 22, 2025 -
The Light System (TLS) has issued a formal statement regarding the lawsuit filed by Energy Enhancement Systems (EES) against center owner Susan Bowman, as first reported by LA Weekly. TLS affirms its support for Bowman and other practitioners who have invested in light and frequency-based wellness systems in good faith and who now face legal and financial pressure as a result of EES?s actions.

According to LA Weekly, EES filed a lawsuit accusing Bowman of making unauthorized modifications to her system. Bowman has stated that many other center owners made similar adjustments without facing legal action. She believes that the real reason she was targeted is because she spoke publicly about the technology?s origins, pointing to evidence showing that Sandra Rose Michael is not the inventor, and identifying Robert J. Religa as the original creator.

Religa, the documented inventor of the technology, and The Light System, his exclusive distribution partner, have filed a $100 million federal lawsuit against EES in the Eastern District of New York alleging copyright infringement and misrepresentation. That case seeks to protect Religa?s intellectual property rights and to ensure that center owners are treated fairly.

The Light System supports center owners who have acted in good faith and who now find themselves facing legal action they should not have to bear. The Bowman case has drawn significant attention among center owners and industry observers, raising questions about EES?s treatment of its own customers. LA Weekly reported that other owners who made similar modifications were not sued, suggesting a selective legal strategy. Bowman has publicly stated that she was targeted because she discussed documented evidence of the true inventor?s identity, not because of any breach of contract.

TLS?s involvement in the broader legal dispute is centered on defending Religa?s rights as the inventor and protecting practitioners from the consequences of actions that arise from misrepresentation or inconsistent enforcement. The company emphasized its position that legal action should not be used to silence individuals who share factual information or who operate their centers in good faith.

The Light System stated that it will continue to cooperate with legal processes, present evidence where appropriate, and advocate for transparency and accountability in the industry. The company reaffirmed its support for center owners like Susan Bowman and for Robert J. Religa, the original inventor, whose rights are central to the pending federal litigation.

The Light System believes that all parties in this industry should be held to the same standard of truth and fairness. Their focus is to ensure that the facts are clear, that the rights of the inventor are protected, and that practitioners are not punished for seeking or sharing the truth.

Disclaimer: The information provided in this statement is for informational purposes only and reflects The Light System?s position regarding ongoing legal matters. It does not constitute legal advice or a legal determination of liability. All parties are presumed innocent unless and until proven otherwise in a court of law. The Light System makes no medical claims; its technology is not a medical device and is intended solely as a complementary wellness tool.

About The Light System

The Light System (TLS) is a U.S.-based wellness technology company specializing in energy-based systems that may support the body?s natural healing. Rooted in over 30 years of research, TLS combines photonic light collision, sacred geometry, light frequencies, and scalar fields to create immersive environments aimed at promoting clarity, calm, and energetic balance. While not a medical device, TLS is designed as a complementary tool for those exploring the energetic dimensions of well-being. For more information, visit thelightsystems.com and follow the company on Instagram at @thelight.system

###

For more information about The Light System, contact the company here:The Light SystemThe Light Systemmedia@thelightsystems.com

The Light System

The Light System (TLS) is a U.S.-based wellness technology company using photonic light collision, sacred geometry, light frequencies, and scalar fields to support clarity, calm, and balance. Not a medical device. Learn more at thelightsystems.com

Website: http://thelightsystems.com

Email: media@thelightsystems.com