

Atticus Injury Law Expands Personal Injury Attorney Services

October 28, 2025

Irvine, California - October 28, 2025 -
Atticus Injury Law has expanded its Personal Injury Attorney Services throughout Southern California, establishing additional practice areas and resources to address the increasing complexity of accident cases in the region. The expansion encompasses new service categories, including e-bike and e-scooter accident representation, alongside traditional vehicle accident and premises liability cases.

The firm, which operates offices in Orange County, San Bernardino, Riverside, and Los Angeles, has structured its practice into three primary divisions: Vehicle-Related Accidents, Premises and Property Liability, and Serious Injuries. This organizational framework allows the firm to allocate specialized resources to each category of personal injury cases.

Recent case outcomes from the firm include an $8.6 million settlement for a Caltrans inspector injured near the 10 freeway in Los Angeles County, a $2.4 million jury verdict, and a $1.5 million jury verdict in separate cases. These results contributed to founder Atticus Wegman's recognition among the nation's Top 40 Under 40 personal injury lawyers.

"The personal injury legal landscape in California has shifted significantly, with new types of accidents emerging alongside traditional cases," said Atticus Wegman, founder of Atticus Injury Law. "Our expansion of Personal Injury Attorney Services reflects these changes and ensures comprehensive representation for all accident victims."

The Vehicle-Related Accidents division handles car accidents, truck collisions, motorcycle crashes, pedestrian incidents, bicycle accidents, and rideshare incidents. The firm has added dedicated resources for e-bike and e-scooter accidents, responding to the increase in these incidents across California municipalities.

The Premises and Property Liability division addresses slip-and-fall accidents, trip-and-fall incidents, premises liability cases, and government dangerous conditions claims. The Serious Injuries division manages construction injuries, product liability cases, wrongful death claims, and dog bite incidents.

The firm has implemented Spanish-language services across all practice areas, addressing the linguistic needs of Southern California's diverse population. This multilingual capability extends to all client communications, documentation, and legal proceedings.

"Each Personal Injury Attorney at our firm handles cases with the understanding that accident victims face immediate medical concerns, insurance complications, and financial pressures," added Wegman. "Our expanded services ensure comprehensive legal support throughout the recovery and litigation process."

The firm maintains dedicated resources for specific Southern California communities, including Orange County, Los Angeles, Santa Ana, Irvine, Riverside, Anaheim, Costa Mesa, Huntington Beach, and San Bernardino. This geographic distribution enables localized legal support for accident victims across the region.

Atticus Injury Law was founded by Atticus Wegman, who earned his Juris Doctor from Chapman University's Fowler School of Law. The firm operates multiple offices throughout Southern California, providing personal injury legal representation across all major accident categories. The practice maintains a focus on accessibility and comprehensive case management for injured individuals and their families throughout the legal process.
