

PA Nursing Home Lawyers Broadens Focus on Elder Abuse & Neglect Representation

October 29, 2025

PHILADELPHIA, PA - October 29, 2025 -
PA Nursing Home Lawyers has announced an expansion of its legal focus to encompass a broader range of elder abuse and neglect cases across Pennsylvania. The initiative underscores the firm?s commitment to representing residents of nursing homes and assisted living facilities who have suffered harm due to negligence or mistreatment.

?Elder abuse cases require persistent advocacy and a careful understanding of both medical and institutional standards,? said Leonard P. Haberman, Esq., principal attorney at PA Nursing Home Lawyers. ?Our firm remains dedicated to holding facilities accountable and ensuring that the voices of elderly residents are heard within the justice system.?

Founded to protect the rights of vulnerable seniors, PA Nursing Home Lawyers concentrates exclusively on civil actions involving nursing home abuse, neglect, and related violations of elder care law. The firm?s expanded focus includes physical abuse, emotional neglect, medication errors, falls resulting from inadequate supervision, and failures in medical care planning. Through this broadened scope, the firm seeks to address the systemic issues contributing to unsafe conditions in long-term care environments.

Elder abuse and neglect continue to present challenges across the United States as the population ages and the demand for long-term care increases. Reports from regulatory agencies and advocacy organizations have drawn attention to understaffing, poor oversight, and gaps in care standards that can endanger residents. By strengthening its emphasis on litigation in this area, PA Nursing Home Lawyers aims to promote improved accountability within the elder care system.

The firm operates from its main office at 1800 John F Kennedy Blvd Suite 1500-B, Philadelphia, and provides representation throughout Pennsylvania. Its attorneys regularly examine evidence such as facility inspection reports, staffing logs, medical records, and witness statements to identify patterns of negligence or noncompliance. These investigations often reveal whether a facility?s management adhered to required safety protocols and resident care obligations.

Since its establishment, the firm has developed experience in personal injury and elder care litigation, representing individuals and families pursuing civil claims against care providers. This includes both individual lawsuits and cases involving multiple residents within the same facility. Through litigation and negotiated resolutions, PA Nursing Home Lawyers has worked to recover compensation for residents who have suffered injuries or loss due to facility misconduct.

While financial recovery remains one outcome of such cases, the firm emphasizes that its broader purpose lies in helping prevent future abuse. Legal actions can result in operational changes, policy revisions, and enhanced oversight from regulatory authorities. These effects extend beyond individual cases, fostering improvements that benefit residents statewide.

Haberman?s team continues to monitor developments in elder care law, including legislative reforms and enforcement efforts at both the state and federal levels. These developments may influence the standards governing nursing home operations, reporting requirements, and penalties for noncompliance. By staying informed, the firm seeks to align its representation with the evolving regulatory environment.

The expansion of the firm?s elder abuse and neglect practice also reflects its recognition of the growing need for specialized legal assistance among families seeking justice for mistreated relatives. Many incidents remain unreported due to fear, confusion, or lack of awareness about available remedies. Through community education and legal outreach, PA Nursing Home Lawyers encourages families to recognize warning signs of abuse and to understand their options under Pennsylvania law.

The firm?s mission remains focused on one central principle: protecting the rights and dignity of elderly residents in institutional care. This guiding purpose informs each case evaluation, negotiation, and courtroom proceeding undertaken on behalf of affected individuals.
