Colorado Springs, Colorado based Leven Rose announces their new product, Organic Tamanu Oil, a natural moisturizer for dry skin. This oil is also known for naturally treating an array of skin conditions, as well as the dry, scaly skin that comes from the cold, winter weather.

"As people begin to wear shorter sleeves and prepare for spring, they will realize the negative effects of the cold weather on their skin and will need a heavier moisturizer to heal their damaged skin," says Courtney Olson, of Leven Rose.

Olsen also states that the oil has powerful healing properties for other conditions such as dandruff, psoriasis, acne, arthritis, scars, joint stiffness, rosacea, toenail fungus, eczema, dark spots, blemishes and insect bites. The oil can be obtained at <http://www.levenrose.com/products/tamanu-oil-1-oz>.

The company says that Tamanu Oil, originating from the Polynesian region and historically used to heal dry or burnt skin, also has an SPF property that can be used to help prevent sunburn. Leven Rose states that though the oil shouldn't be used instead of sunscreen, it can be used along with sunscreen as base layer to moisturize the skin and provide further protection from the damaging UV rays of the sun. It also alleviates flaky skin if sunburn does occur.

Tamanu Oil is available now on the Amazon at <http://www.amazon.com/Leven-Rose-Tamanu-Oil-Cold-Pressed/dp/B00YBO25RW>.

Leven Rose offers a number of oils and similar products on Amazon, all of which are completely natural according to a company spokesperson. Tamanu Oil comes in a one ounce bottle with dropper, which makes it easier to distribute.
