Keathley Landscaping Expands Flagstone and Retaining Wall Services to Address Drainage Concerns

November 13, 2025

GARLAND, TX - November 13, 2025 -
Keathley Landscaping, a Dallas-based landscape design and installation company, has expanded its custom stonework and drainage solutions to meet increasing homeowner demand for comprehensive outdoor water management systems throughout North Texas.

The expansion comes as more property owners recognize the critical connection between proper drainage infrastructure and landscape features such as retaining walls and stonework installations. Poor drainage remains one of the most overlooked causes of property damage, often resulting in foundation issues, flooded basements, and damaged wood flooring that homeowners' insurance typically does not cover.

"Complex drainage problems require more than surface-level fixes," said Logan Keathley, NDS Certified Drainage Contractor and founder of Keathley Landscaping. "We're seeing an increase in properties where water management needs to be integrated with hardscape elements like flagstone patios and retaining walls. The key is designing systems that work together - proper grading, strategic placement of drainage lines, and stonework that directs water away from structures."

The company's enhanced service offerings combine traditional landscaping elements with advanced drainage technology. As an NDS Qualified Drainage Professional, Logan Keathley brings specialized expertise in solving complex yard drainage issues through solutions ranging from French drain installations to custom-designed buried drainage pipelines. These systems integrate seamlessly with decorative elements such as flagstone overlays, paver installations, and custom retaining walls.

Retaining walls serve a dual purpose in modern landscape design, providing both aesthetic appeal and functional water management. When properly constructed, these structures prevent soil erosion, redirect water flow, and create level areas for outdoor living spaces. The company specializes in hand-crafted retaining walls that incorporate drainage considerations from the initial design phase, ensuring long-term stability and effectiveness.

The expanded services address a growing need in the Dallas metropolitan area, where clay soil conditions and seasonal rainfall patterns create unique drainage challenges. Properties in Murphy, Plano, Richardson, Rockwall, and surrounding communities often experience water pooling, soil saturation, and runoff issues that require professional intervention.

Beyond drainage solutions, the company's stonework services include outdoor kitchens, fireplaces, fire pits, and flowerbed borders. Each installation considers water flow patterns and incorporates appropriate drainage measures to protect both the hardscape investment and the property's foundation.

"Homeowners often don't realize that beautiful outdoor features can also serve practical drainage purposes," added Keathley. "A well-designed flagstone patio with proper grading underneath can direct water away from the home while creating an attractive entertainment space. It's about combining form and function in every project."

Established in 2002, Keathley Landscaping provides comprehensive landscape design, installation, and maintenance services throughout the Dallas area. The company specializes in sod installation, landscape lighting, fence repair and installation, patio covers, tree services, and custom stonework. As a certified drainage contractor, the company focuses on creating outdoor spaces that are both visually appealing and structurally sound, with particular expertise in addressing North Texas's unique soil and climate conditions.
