Mold Removal Express Welcomes New Ownership with Deep Roots

October 31, 2025

FORT COLLINS, CO - October 31, 2025 -
Mold Removal Express, a Denver-based mold remediation company serving the Denver Metro area, Boulder, and Fort Collins, has announced a transition in ownership to Stacy and Richard Jones. The change represents a continuation of the company's commitment to providing specialized mold removal services throughout the Colorado Front Range, where it has operated for over 15 years.

The Jones family brings extensive experience to their new roles, with Richard Jones having served as the company's lead technician prior to the ownership transition. This background ensures continuity in the technical expertise and service quality that have defined the company's operations since its founding in 2012. Stacy Jones joins her husband in managing the business, maintaining the company's status as a family-owned and women-operated enterprise.

Mold Removal Express specializes in residential and commercial mold remediation services, with a particular focus on challenging areas such as crawl spaces, attics and basements. The company also addresses mold issues resulting from roof leaks, sink leaks, poor ventilation, and other moisture-related problems common to Colorado properties. Its proprietary Micro Mist fogging treatment serves as the primary remediation method, distinguishing its approach from conventional mold removal techniques. This specialized sterilizing fog treatment has become a cornerstone of the company's service offerings to homeowners, realtors, and property managers throughout the region.

"We are honored to continue the legacy of quality service that Mold Removal Express has built over the past 15 years," said Richard Jones, co-owner of Mold Removal Express. "Our goal is to maintain the same level of expertise and customer commitment while ensuring every client receives the thorough, reliable service they deserve."

The ownership transition maintains the company's established operational structure, including its 24-hour availability for urgent mold concerns and its comprehensive service guarantee. The company continues to serve communities throughout the Denver Metro area from its location at 1550 Larimer Street in Denver, with service coverage extending north to Fort Collins, south to Colorado Springs and west to Boulder.

The company's service model emphasizes education and consultation, offering phone-based assessments and photo evaluations to help property owners understand their mold situations before treatment begins. This approach reflects the company's commitment to transparency and customer service throughout the remediation process. With the transition to new ownership, Mold Removal Express maintains its focus on addressing black mold removal and mold issues resulting from common Colorado challenges, including basement and crawlspace moisture problems, attic condensation, and mold growth in poorly ventilated spaces. The company's expertise in these specific areas has made it a resource for home buyers and sellers navigating property transactions in the region.

The Jones family's assumption of ownership represents a natural progression for the business, combining Richard's technical knowledge with Stacy's business management capabilities. This partnership structure supports the company's operational needs while preserving its family-owned character and local focus.

Mold Removal Express continues to operate with its full team of application technicians, ensuring that existing client relationships and service standards remain consistent through the ownership change. The company maintains its certification status while upholding its commitment to using environmentally conscious products and advanced remediation techniques.

The new ownership era positions Mold Removal Express to build upon its established reputation in the Colorado mold remediation industry. Property owners throughout Denver, Aurora, Lakewood, Boulder, Colorado Springs and Fort Collins seeking mold removal services can contact the company at its Denver office or access additional information through Mold Removal Express for consultation and service details.
