Announcing Expanded Apartment Listings Now Available Across Cyprus by GoGordian

December 04, 2025

Nicosia, CY - December 04, 2025 -
GoGordian, one of Cyprus?s leading real estate solution providers, has announced a nationwide expansion of its residential property portfolio, with new and existing apartment listings now available in multiple regions across the island. This announcement reflects a strategic decision to increase accessibility to high-quality apartment housing in key urban, suburban, and coastal areas, positioning GoGordian as a go-to option for property seekers in Cyprus. The listings include a wide range of apartment types, suitable for individual buyers, families, and investors alike.

The newly updated inventory includes properties in locations such as Nicosia, Limassol, Larnaca, Paphos, and Famagusta. The range comprises studio units, one- and two-bedroom apartments, and larger multi-room residences suitable for family living or long-term rental income. Each listing has been carefully selected based on specific criteria, including transport connectivity, proximity to essential services, and access to commercial, educational, or recreational amenities. According to a company spokesperson, ?This island-wide rollout of updated apartment listings reflects GoGordian?s ongoing mission to provide flexible residential options in line with Cyprus?s evolving property demands.?

Cyprus continues to experience stable interest in residential real estate, with local and international buyers recognising the value of apartment ownership both for personal use and as a form of capital investment. The spokesperson added, ?GoGordian has aligned its portfolio with what the market is actively seeking: well-located, legally secure, and practically designed apartments that deliver long-term value. Whether buyers are looking to occupy, rent out, or hold the property as an appreciating asset, these listings offer that potential.?

The expanded inventory is especially timely given the recent uptick in transaction activity across the island?s residential market. Publicly available land registry data indicate that apartment sales have experienced consistent year-on-year growth in both metropolitan centers and secondary cities. This pattern reflects broader demographic trends, including increased urbanisation, the return of international students, and inward migration from EU citizens seeking permanent residence under available regulatory pathways.

GoGordian?s apartments are situated in neighbourhoods that cater to a wide range of priorities, including access to schools, proximity to business districts, and walkability to shopping or cultural venues. Locations such as Strovolos in Nicosia, Kapsalos in Limassol, Aradippou in Larnaca, and central Paphos have all seen recent additions to the platform. Listings vary in terms of layout and floor area but share core features such as efficient floor plans, natural lighting, and access to building amenities such as elevators, parking, or green spaces.

To support prospective buyers, GoGordian has made its listings available on its official website at www.gogordian.com. There, users can filter apartments by location, property type, size, or price range and submit inquiries directly through the platform. The site includes high-resolution images, location maps, and essential legal and planning information for each property. Buyers also have access to personalised guidance through GoGordian?s property advisors, who assist with scheduling viewings, navigating the legal process, and completing the transaction with confidence.

As part of its ongoing strategy, GoGordian has prioritised legal and procedural transparency in all its listings. Every apartment is either available with a clean title deed or is eligible for title deed issuance, a key factor for many buyers navigating Cyprus?s regulatory landscape. The organisation?s commitment to compliance and customer clarity has earned it a reputation as one of the most dependable real estate sources on the island.

The recent expansion is also expected to have a positive impact on local economies. Increased residential ownership supports infrastructure development, encourages community retention, and provides long-term benefits to nearby businesses. By making apartments available in both high-demand urban zones and lesser-known yet rapidly developing areas, GoGordian is enabling property acquisition to remain geographically inclusive and economically impactful.

A spokesperson noted, ?This release was carefully planned to meet both immediate housing needs and long-term investment goals. The diversity of the portfolio ensures that buyers across all budgets and profiles can find a suitable option, whether in a city centre or a growing suburban neighbourhood.?

The timing of this release follows a period of steady residential performance post-pandemic, as stability has returned to Cyprus?s property sector. As the island positions itself as a destination for investment, education, and quality of life, apartments remain a key pillar in the housing market. GoGordian?s contribution strengthens this segment and provides reliable entry points for a wide variety of buyers.
