

Classic American Icon: 1964 Chevrolet Corvette Now Available on CarDaddy?s Online Auction Platform

November 06, 2025

CADILLAC, MI - November 06, 2025 -
A well-preserved 1964 Chevrolet Corvette, a notable example of mid-century American automotive design, has been listed for auction on CarDaddy.com. The model represents one of the most recognizable vehicles from the second generation of Corvettes, known for combining performance engineering with timeless styling that helped define Chevrolet?s sports car heritage.

This particular 1964 Corvette features a 327 cubic inch V8 engine paired with a 4-speed manual transmission?an original configuration that contributed to the car?s reputation for responsive handling and balanced power delivery. The vehicle is finished in classic black with a matching convertible top and retains period-appropriate details that reflect the craftsmanship of 1960s American manufacturing.

According to the current owner, the vehicle runs and drives well and holds a clean title. The odometer indicates approximately 84,995 miles, suggesting that the car has been driven but remains well-preserved for its age. Inside, the Corvette maintains its vintage character with dual bucket seats, a center console layout, and instrumentation designed for a driver-focused experience. These details showcase the model?s original blend of design precision and functionality, elements that contributed to the Corvette?s identity as both a performance vehicle and a collectible icon.

The 1964 model year marked the continuation of the Corvette?s second generation, commonly referred to as the ?Sting Ray.? This era introduced significant advancements over the earlier C1 generation, including independent rear suspension and improved aerodynamics. The removal of the 1963 split rear window offered better rear visibility while retaining the distinctive silhouette that made the Sting Ray a standout in its era. Subtle updates to the interior materials and mechanical components reflected Chevrolet?s ongoing effort to refine its flagship sports car.

Today, Corvettes from this generation remain in strong demand among collectors, partly due to their combination of performance potential and historical significance. Many automotive historians regard the C2 models as a turning point for Chevrolet, bridging the gap between classic 1950s styling and the higher-performance focus that would define later generations. For enthusiasts seeking a well-kept and drivable example from this era, the 1964 model represents an entry point into the Corvette legacy.

The vehicle is currently listed on CarDaddy.com, a digital platform that facilitates online auctions and listings for vehicles of various types, including classic and collector cars. The site allows users to browse high-resolution images, review condition notes, and verify details provided by sellers. By offering a structured and transparent auction format, platforms like CarDaddy help make collectible vehicles more accessible to a wider audience of buyers who may be located across the country.

The rise of online auction platforms has influenced how vehicles like this Corvette reach collectors. Instead of relying solely on regional in-person events or private sales, digital marketplaces now allow enthusiasts to participate remotely, broadening the reach of listings and improving visibility for unique examples. The Corvette?s presence on CarDaddy reflects this growing shift toward online vehicle transactions, where technology supports both transparency and efficiency in the buying process.

Interested participants can view the complete 1964 Chevrolet Corvette Convertible listing directly on CarDaddy.com. The listing includes photographs, specifications, and detailed information about the car?s current condition. Registration is required to place bids or contact the seller for additional inquiries.

This vehicle remains a noteworthy representation of an era that shaped America?s performance-car identity. Its preservation and continued drivability underscore the appeal of mid-century engineering and design.

###

For more information about CarDaddy, contact the company here:CarDaddyJohn Beebe(844) 771-0023info@cardaddy.comCarDaddy6576 E 34 Rd #1 Cadillac MI 49601

CarDaddy

CarDaddy is a leading automotive marketplace featuring live auctions. Auto dealers love the flat rate fee structure for putting their entire inventory for sale on CarDaddy.

Website: https://www.cardaddy.com

Email: info@cardaddy.com

Phone: (844) 771-0023