

V1 Construction Strengthens Home Exterior Improvement Services Ahead of Storm Season

November 07, 2025

November 07, 2025 -
V1 Construction, a Vancouver-based construction company with over 45 years of combined experience, announces enhanced readiness to protect homes throughout the Pacific Northwest as the region prepares for its annual storm season, marked by atmospheric river events, heavy rainfall, and wind gusts that can exceed 50 miles per hour.

The company has positioned itself to address the urgent need for weather-resistant home exteriors as meteorologists predict increasingly intense storm systems affecting the region. With Vancouver's housing market maintaining a median sale price of $500,000 and limited inventory of just 820 active listings, protecting property investments has become paramount for homeowners facing potential weather damage.

"The Pacific Northwest's storm season presents unique challenges for homeowners, particularly those with aging roofs, siding, and outdoor structures," said a spokesperson for V1 Construction. "Our comprehensive approach to exterior home protection combines decades of experience with certified installation of industry-leading materials designed specifically for our regional climate conditions."

The company's exterior home improvement services encompass a full spectrum of weatherproofing solutions. The company specializes in GAF Golden Pledge warranted roofing systems, including asphalt, metal, and composite materials engineered to withstand the region's harsh weather conditions. Additionally, the company installs James Hardie fiber cement siding, known for its durability and resistance to moisture, pests, and rot?critical factors in the wet Pacific Northwest climate.

Beyond roofing and siding, the company provides Milgard window replacements designed to improve energy efficiency while protecting against wind-driven rain. Custom deck construction and patio covers create weather-resistant outdoor living spaces, while properly installed gutter systems ensure effective water management during heavy rainfall events.

"Property protection goes beyond immediate storm damage prevention," noted a V1 Construction representative. "Quality exterior improvements can enhance property values by up to 70 percent through improved energy efficiency and enhanced curb appeal, making these investments valuable for both immediate protection and long-term property appreciation."

The company serves Vancouver and communities within a 50-mile radius, offering free consultations and estimates to assess properties for weather vulnerability. Senior citizens and military personnel receive special discounts on services. Each project includes detailed on-site evaluations to identify specific weatherproofing needs based on individual property conditions and exposure.

V1 Construction in Vancouver maintains full licensing and insurance coverage, ensuring professional standards for all installations. The company's authorization as installers of James Hardie siding and Milgard windows, combined with GAF Golden Pledge warranty certification, provides homeowners with manufacturer-backed protection for their investments.

As atmospheric river storms become more frequent and intense in the Pacific Northwest, the importance of properly maintained and upgraded home exteriors continues to grow. Washington residents face unique challenges from the combination of heavy rainfall, strong winds, and temperature fluctuations that can compromise building materials over time.

V1 Construction operates as a full-service construction company offering roofing, siding, windows, decking, patio construction, home remodeling, new home construction, and gutter installation services throughout the greater Vancouver area.
