

Encore Data Products Expands Tech Protection Solutions with TechProtectus Product Line

November 20, 2025

LAFAYETTE, CO - November 20, 2025 -
Encore Data Products, a leading provider of audio and technology products for educational institutions and businesses, has expanded its protective technology offerings with the introduction of TechProtectus products. The Lafayette, Colorado-based company provides comprehensive device protection solutions designed to extend the lifespan of classroom and workplace technology investments.

The TechProtectus product line encompasses protective cases and covers for tablets, laptops, Chromebooks, and mobile devices commonly used in educational and professional settings. The expansion addresses growing demand from schools and organizations seeking durable protection for their technology assets while maintaining device functionality and accessibility for daily use.

The complete TechProtectus product catalog and specifications are available at https://www.encoredataproducts.com/techprotectus/ where educators and procurement professionals can explore options suited to their specific device protection needs.

?Educational institutions and businesses invest significantly in technology, and protecting these assets has become a critical priority,? said a company spokesperson for Encore Data Products. ?TechProtectus products represent our commitment to helping organizations maximize their technology investments through practical, durable protection solutions that withstand the demands of daily classroom and workplace use.?

The TechProtectus line features rugged cases for Chromebooks and laptops. Each product undergoes rigorous testing to ensure compatibility with educational technology standards and durability requirements for institutional use.

Schools implementing one-to-one device programs have expressed particular interest in comprehensive protection solutions as student device usage continues to expand. The TechProtectus offerings align with Encore Data Products' established portfolio of educational technology solutions, complementing existing audio equipment, charging stations, and classroom technology accessories.

The protective cases incorporate reinforced corners and shock-absorbing materials to guard against drops and impacts common in classroom environments. Precise cutouts maintain full access to ports, buttons, and cameras while providing maximum coverage. The designs also accommodate various mounting and storage systems used in educational settings.

Beyond physical protection, the TechProtectus line supports device hygiene initiatives with materials that facilitate easy cleaning and sanitization. This feature has gained importance as institutions maintain heightened cleanliness protocols for shared technology resources.

Encore Data Products has served the education and business technology markets for decades, specializing in audio equipment, AV technology, and accessories that support learning environments. The company's product portfolio includes headphones, charging solutions, document cameras, interactive displays, and communication systems. With the addition of TechProtectus protective solutions, Encore Data Products continues expanding its comprehensive technology support offerings for institutions nationwide.

The company maintains its commitment to providing cost-effective technology solutions that address real-world challenges faced by educators and IT administrators.
