March 11, 2016 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

McDonough's, a drain cleaning company in St. Paul, MN, has announced the launch of their newly redesigned website. The company has more than 20 years of experience in their field, and has recently had their website overhauled to make it more functional for desktop and mobile users.

Clark Young, spokesperson for the company states, "We thought it was time that we made our site more user-friendly, particularly for those who use smartphones. There are many new features, and all of them are designed to make your life easier."

The Minneapolis drain cleaning company provides residential, commercial, and industrial services from two locations in St. Paul and Minneapolis, which include 24 hour emergency services. The new website provides information on the variety of services that the company provides, as well as an online appointment scheduler which Young says makes it easier for customers to schedule drain cleaning.

"We felt that an online scheduler would be much more convenient for customers. They just visit the website and schedule the time that they need, which saves time and alerts us instantly that someone needs our assistance," explains Clark Young.

Home or business owners who would like more information about McDonough's - Unclog Drains services can visit the company on their newly redesigned website. A selection of articles and posts are available offering general information on subjects related to what causes drain clogs and how the company can remove clogs safely and effectively. An overview of all techniques that they use is also offered on the new site.

McDonough's provides video inspection of pipes to determine the root cause of the clog, as well as other specialty plumbing services. The company states that they hope their new website will help customers to learn more about their pipes and what could potentially be causing their specific issue. They also state that they feel their website will help customers to save time when scheduling an appointment and that it offers more information about the company in general as well as their list of services. Those interested can visit the new website to learn more or to schedule an appointment.
