BOULDER, CO - November 13, 2025 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Ascent CFO Solutions has reached a significant milestone by serving more than 400 companies nationwide through its network of Fractional CFO, Interim CFO, and Virtual CFO services. The achievement reflects the increasing reliance of US businesses on flexible financial leadership that adapts to changing market conditions without the long-term cost of a full-time hire.

Across industries, organizations are re-evaluating how they manage finance and forecasting amid economic uncertainty, evolving regulations, and tighter margins. The rise of fractional and virtual models has allowed growing companies to access experienced financial leadership on demand, integrating strategy, compliance, and data-driven insights without expanding payroll.

?Ascent CFO Solutions helps companies prepare for an exit, a new round of investment, or the next stage of growth. When we work together, we integrate seamlessly by providing proactive financial strategy, rigorous systems, and forecasting that empower leaders to make decisions with clarity and confidence,? said Dan DeGolier, Founder and CEO of Ascent CFO Solutions.

Since its founding, Ascent CFO Solutions has seen a steady adoption of its model among startups, family-owned businesses, and private-equity-backed enterprises seeking cost-effective access to executive-level financial guidance. The company's team of CFOs, Controllers, and Financial Analysts operates across multiple sectors, from manufacturing and healthcare to technology and professional services, delivering tailored financial oversight aligned with each client's stage of growth.

Industry analysts note that the demand for fractional leadership has increased sharply over the past five years, especially in finance roles. Various surveys conducted by different organizations, such as Financial Executives International and Deloitte, have highlighted growing adoption of flexible financial leadership models as businesses navigate expansion, restructuring, and digital transformation. This trend underscores the appeal of the model pioneered by firms like Ascent CFO Solutions, which combine high-level financial strategy with scalable implementation support.

?We don't just deliver services, we invest in outcomes,? said Pam Wimer, Fractional CFO at Ascent CFO Solutions. ?Whether stepping in as Interim CFO during a critical transition or supporting ongoing growth through fractional leadership, our goal is to leave every company we serve in a stronger position than when we arrived.?

Virtual CFO services, which imply financial professionals providing oversight remotely, have become especially important for distributed organizations and hybrid workforces. The model allows companies to access specialized insight regardless of location, ensuring continuity even as teams and operations expand. For many growing enterprises, these services have evolved from stopgap measures into long-term strategic partnerships.

?Accuracy, visibility, and forward-looking insight are the foundation for sustainable growth,? said Matt Kelly, Fractional CFO at Ascent CFO Solutions. ?Our team exists to build those systems so that all of our clients are in the best position to grow.?

Analysts also noted that the increased adoption of cloud-based financial tools and automation platforms has accelerated the shift further. The accessibility of secure data environments makes it possible for CFOs to monitor all the relevant aspects of the business, from cash flow, capital structure, and performance metrics, all in real time from just about anywhere. This has effectively redefined what executive collaboration can look like for modern organizations.

As more businesses face the challenge of balancing strategic oversight with budget efficiency, the flexible CFO model is likely to remain a key part of that equation. By providing scalable financial leadership, fractional and virtual teams offer a pragmatic bridge between bookkeeping and board-level decision-making.
