Schuster Law Expands Medical Malpractice Representation in Delaware County

December 26, 2025

MEDIA, PA - December 26, 2025 -
Schuster Law has announced expanded legal services for individuals pursuing medical malpractice claims in Delaware County, Pennsylvania. The firm?s attorneys represent patients and families seeking accountability for injuries arising from medical errors, negligence, or failure to meet professional care standards.

?Medical malpractice cases require careful review of both the medical facts and the legal standards governing professional conduct,? said Ken R. Schuster, Esq., founder and managing attorney of Schuster Law. ?Our approach focuses on evaluating the circumstances of each case in accordance with Pennsylvania law and established medical guidelines.?

Founded in 1998 and based in Media, Pennsylvania, Schuster Law represents clients across Delaware County in a range of civil litigation matters, including personal injury, workers? compensation, and Social Security claims. The firm?s medical malpractice practice addresses claims involving surgical errors, diagnostic mistakes, medication mismanagement, and hospital negligence. Each matter is examined in coordination with independent medical professionals to determine whether a deviation from accepted standards of care occurred.

Under Pennsylvania law, a medical malpractice claim must demonstrate that a healthcare provider owed a duty of care, that this duty was breached, and that the breach directly caused measurable harm. Schuster Law assists clients in gathering medical records, consulting with experts, and filing the required certificates of merit confirming that an appropriate basis exists for the claim. This procedural step ensures that the case meets the statutory requirements outlined by the Pennsylvania Rules of Civil Procedure.

Common examples of medical malpractice claims include surgical errors such as wrong-site operations, delayed or incorrect diagnoses, improper medication administration, and failure to obtain informed consent. The firm also handles cases involving birth injuries, anesthesia complications, and negligent post-operative care. In each instance, Schuster Law conducts a detailed review of hospital documentation, provider notes, and relevant clinical protocols to determine whether negligence contributed to the outcome.

Hospital negligence claims may involve multiple responsible parties, including physicians, nurses, and administrative staff. Schuster Law evaluates each role within the care process to identify where errors may have occurred and how systemic issues may have contributed to the injury. The firm works with medical experts to assess whether institutional policies were followed and whether safety or reporting requirements were met under state and federal regulations.

The attorneys at Schuster Law also handle claims involving delayed diagnosis or failure to diagnose serious conditions such as cancer, infection, or cardiac disease. These cases often require analysis of diagnostic imaging, laboratory testing, and patient history to determine whether earlier detection could have prevented harm. The firm ensures that expert opinions are properly documented and submitted in accordance with evidentiary standards.

In addition to pursuing compensation for medical expenses, lost wages, and long-term care needs, Schuster Law assists families in wrongful death claims resulting from medical negligence. These cases require compliance with Pennsylvania?s Wrongful Death and Survival Acts, which govern who may bring an action and how damages are distributed. The firm?s attorneys manage all procedural filings, ensuring that statutory deadlines and notice requirements are met.

Ken R. Schuster, Esq., has more than three decades of experience in civil litigation and is admitted to practice in both Pennsylvania state and federal courts. His leadership has guided Schuster Law?s continued focus on accuracy, legal integrity, and client education. Under his direction, the firm maintains its commitment to providing informed representation for individuals affected by professional negligence.

From its office in Media, Schuster Law serves clients across Delaware County, including Chester, Upper Darby, Springfield, and surrounding municipalities. The firm?s expansion of medical malpractice representation reflects its ongoing dedication to assisting patients and families seeking justice through Pennsylvania?s civil court system.
