

Release Of Free New Campfire Travel E-Magazine Announced

March 11, 2016

March 11, 2016 -

Chedall LLC, a business in Wilmington, Delaware, is proud to announce the launch of their new Campfire Travel E-Magazine, along with various websites that accompany it. These sites include the main website, the search site, and the campfire travel community site. All of these sites can be reached through the home page of campfiretravel.com. People are encouraged to download the free E-Magazine to discover its various features that are targeted towards camping and recreational vehicle enthusiasts.

David Hall from Chedall LLC says: "We believe that our new E-Magazine would be very helpful. There is also a corresponding app that is available through the Play Store, iTunes, Amazon and more. It is designed to bring RV and camping enthusiasts together and provide them with all the information they need to further enhance their enjoyment of camping and campfires. Coupled with our newly updated websites and we have created a community where people can come together and share their information and stories."

The e-magazine is published once a month. Every month, it focuses on four or five different states in the country. It showcases RV resorts and campsites, giving people the opportunity to discover new locations that are suitable to their own personal needs. Plus, each magazine will include prizes to win, photo competitions and more.

Besides allowing people to sign up for the free e-magazine, the official Campfire Travel website also enables people to join the Campfire community itself. This community has been designed for campers to connect with each other, building friendships at the same time. Members of the community can also upload photographs of places they have been, their camping equipment or more, sharing this with others.

"Camping is a true lifestyle," explains David Hall. "It involves various pieces of equipment, things to do while camping, where to go, how to spend the night and more. It is also about being one with nature again, and this often leads to some fantastic photo opportunities. We encourage people to share these with each other, and to simply talk about their love of RVs and camping through our community."

People are also encouraged to like the newly launched Campfire Travel Facebook page.
