November 24, 2025

OMAHA, NE - November 24, 2025 -
Hamilton Heights Child Development Center has received recognition as Best of Omaha in the Child Daycare and Preschool categories for 2025. This award acknowledges the center's ongoing commitment to delivering high-quality early childhood education and care to families in the region. As a childcare center in Omaha, NE, with multiple locations, the organization continues to serve children from infancy through school age, emphasizing play-based and child-led learning approaches.

The recognition comes from community voting in the annual Best of Omaha contest, which identifies local providers in various categories based on public input. For Hamilton Heights Child Development Center, this marks another year of acknowledgment for its programs designed to foster children's growth in safe and supportive environments. The center's approach centers on inspiring children to explore the world through play, curiosity, and compassion, aligning with established early childhood development principles.

Programs at Hamilton Heights Child Development Center cater to specific age groups, starting with infant care for children from six weeks to 18 months. In these classrooms, caregivers provide gentle and responsive attention to encourage sensory development and early bonding. For toddlers aged 18 months to three years, the focus shifts to building self-help skills, communication abilities, and motor coordination through hands-on exploration activities. Preschool programs for three- to four-year-olds incorporate imaginative play, creative arts, outdoor experiences, and themed learning centers to promote cognitive and social development.

Pre-kindergarten offerings for four- to five-year-olds emphasize kindergarten readiness by integrating child-led learning with activities that build social, emotional, and academic skills. School-age programs, available at select locations, include before- and after-school care along with a summer program featuring discovery-based activities and field trips for children up to 12 years old. Each program is structured to allow children to learn at their own pace while feeling seen, heard, and valued by educators.

Adrianne, Owner and Executive Director of Hamilton Heights Child Development Center, stated, "This 2025 recognition reflects the dedication of our team to creating environments where children can discover and grow through meaningful play experiences." The center's educators bring passion to their roles, drawing on their understanding of child development to facilitate enriching daily routines.

Locations across Omaha include facilities at 127th and Webster, 154th and Taylor, 132nd and Fort, and 86th and Cass streets. Additional sites in Papillion and Lincoln extend the center's reach to more families in Nebraska. Classrooms are designed for discovery, with spaces that support active learning and interaction. The motto "Play, Explore, Grow" encapsulates the philosophy that guides daily operations.

Cathy, Regional Director at Hamilton Heights Child Development Center, added, "Our programs support each child's unique journey, incorporating elements like outdoor time and creative arts to nurture holistic development." This approach ensures that children develop foundational skills while enjoying their time at the center.

The center encourages families to schedule tours to observe the programs firsthand and learn more about available spots.
