Orion HVAC Expands AC Installation Services in Van Nuys

November 28, 2025

Van Nuys, CA - November 28, 2025 -

Orion HVAC has announced the expansion of its air conditioning installation services to better serve residential and commercial properties throughout Van Nuys and surrounding areas. The company, which operates from its location at 15922 Strathern St, has responded to increased demand for professional cooling system installations by enhancing its service capacity and technical capabilities. This growth reflects the company?s continued commitment to meeting the evolving needs of local property owners who require dependable and efficient HVAC solutions, especially during peak seasonal temperatures when reliable cooling becomes essential for comfort and productivity.

The expansion comes as property owners in the region seek reliable solutions for replacing aging cooling systems and installing modern, energy-efficient units. Orion HVAC has been providing HVAC services in Van Nuys for eight years, building a customer base through same-day service appointments and certified technical expertise. The company notes that many homeowners are prioritizing energy savings and long-term performance, which has contributed to increased interest in professionally installed systems designed to deliver consistent cooling and improved indoor comfort.

The company's AC installation in Van Nuys now includes comprehensive assessments of property cooling needs, system sizing calculations, and installation of various unit types including central air systems, ductless mini-split configurations, and high-efficiency models. Each installation follows manufacturer specifications and local building codes to ensure proper system performance and warranty compliance.

"We have seen a significant increase in requests for AC installation services from both homeowners and business operators in Van Nuys," said a representative from Orion HVAC. "Our expanded service capacity allows us to respond more quickly to installation needs while maintaining the quality standards our customers expect."

The installation process implemented by Orion HVAC begins with an on-site evaluation where technicians assess factors including square footage, existing ductwork conditions, electrical capacity, and specific cooling requirements. This assessment informs equipment selection and installation planning. The company's technicians hold industry certifications and use diagnostic tools to verify proper system operation following installation.

Property owners considering AC replacement can schedule consultations to review their current systems and discuss replacement options. The company provides information on equipment specifications, energy efficiency ratings, and projected operating costs to assist customers in making informed decisions about their cooling systems.

Orion HVAC operates with certified technicians who have completed training in modern HVAC installation techniques and equipment operation. The company maintains availability for service requests through its contact line at (323) 672-4857 and processes scheduling through its website at myorionhvac.com.

The expansion of AC installation services addresses the need for professional installation as older cooling systems in the area reach the end of their operational lifespan. Many units installed 10 to 15 years ago are now experiencing reduced efficiency and increased failure rates, prompting property owners to consider replacement options.

Following installation, Orion HVAC provides customers with system operation instructions and maintenance recommendations. The company offers ongoing maintenance services to support long-term system performance and addresses repair needs as they arise.
