Your Choice Plumbers Announces Free Compliance Checks to Protect Homeowners From Flood Damage and Insurance Claim Denials

December 08, 2025

ASPENDALE, VIC - December 08, 2025 -
Your Choice Plumbers has announced an initiative to help Melbourne homeowners protect their properties and validate their insurance coverage through comprehensive plumbing compliance assessments. The program addresses growing concerns about insurance claim denials related to preventable water damage from non-compliant plumbing components.

The Melbourne-based plumbing company has developed a systematic approach to identify potential failure points before they cause catastrophic damage. Homeowners can now Schedule Free Compliance Plumbing Check to assess critical components that commonly lead to internal flooding and insurance complications.

Recent industry data reveals that many homeowners face unexpected insurance claim rejections when internal flooding occurs due to failed flexible hoses or over-pressurized systems. These denials often stem from components that fail to meet Australian Standards AS/NZS 3500, leaving property owners with substantial repair costs and no coverage.

"Property owners often discover their insurance limitations only after experiencing significant water damage," said a spokesperson from Your Choice Plumbers. "By identifying non-compliant components and potential failure points before an incident occurs, homeowners can take preventive action that protects both their property and their insurance coverage. This proactive approach helps avoid the devastating financial impact of denied claims."

The assessment focuses on three primary areas of concern. First, technicians examine flexible hoses throughout the property, as these components represent one of the most frequent causes of sudden water damage. The service helps to Prevent Internal Flood Damage: Flexible Hoses by identifying aging, deteriorating, or non-compliant installations that could fail without warning.

Second, the inspection addresses Pressure Reducing Valve (PRV) Compliance & Protection, ensuring these critical devices function properly to prevent excessive water pressure that can rupture pipes and fixtures. PRVs that fail to meet standards or operate correctly can void insurance coverage when pressure-related damage occurs.

Third, the assessment includes tempering valves (TMVs) to verify compliance with safety regulations and prevent scalding incidents that could result in liability issues.

The timing of this initiative reflects increasing awareness within the plumbing industry about the gap between homeowner expectations and actual insurance coverage. Many policies contain specific exclusions for damage caused by gradual deterioration or failure to maintain plumbing systems to required standards.

During the compliance check, certified plumbers document the condition and compliance status of critical plumbing components. This documentation serves multiple purposes: it identifies immediate risks, provides a maintenance roadmap, and creates a record that may support future insurance claims by demonstrating proper system oversight.

The assessment process typically reveals multiple areas where simple preventive maintenance or component replacement can significantly reduce flood risk. Common findings include flexible hoses approaching their recommended replacement age, pressure-reducing valves operating outside optimal ranges, and tempering valves requiring adjustment or servicing.

Your Choice Plumbers operates throughout Melbourne, providing residential and commercial plumbing services including gas leak detection, bathroom renovations, blocked drain solutions, burst pipe repair, leak detection, hot water system repairs, and comprehensive flood prevention services.
