Minneapolis, MN - December 03, 2025 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

The Institute of Untaxable Wealth today announced the launch of the Make Life Less Taxing Podcast, a new series designed to help independent insurance and financial advisors, entrepreneurs, and purpose-driven professionals identify and address the hidden pressures that quietly erode their time, peace, clarity, and purpose. The podcast marks the public introduction of the Keep What's Yours & Break Free movement, a philosophy centered on reclaiming one's life, identity, and agency in an increasingly demanding professional landscape.

Hosted by business strategist and mentor Daniel Hanzelka, founder of the Institute of Untaxable Wealth, the podcast explores the subtle ways professionals lose ground in their work and personal lives without realizing it. Rather than focusing solely on technical financial planning topics, the series addresses the deeper systemic forces that influence decision-making, well-being, and long-term fulfillment.

"Financial professionals today face constant pressure from systems that demand more of their time, energy, and clarity than ever before," said Daniel Hanzelka, founder of the Institute of Untaxable Wealth. "The Make Life Less Taxing Podcast was created to help people recognize those pressures and begin reclaiming what already belongs to them."

Each episode examines how individuals unknowingly surrender essential aspects of their lives, including their time, peace, creativity, purpose, and identity. The podcast draws from Hanzelka's decades of experience in the financial and advisory industries, combined with personal insights that have shaped his approach to helping professionals navigate modern challenges.

The series features both solo episodes where Hanzelka shares frameworks and reflections, as well as interviews with advisors and leaders who discuss pivotal moments, turning points, and lessons learned throughout their careers. These conversations go beyond traditional financial discussions to explore what truly creates freedom in life, business, and legacy.

"The Keep What's Yours & Break Free movement is about more than finances - it's about identity, purpose, and freedom," Hanzelka added. "This podcast gives listeners a place to rethink how they work, lead, and live in a world that often pulls them away from what truly matters."

The podcast aims to help listeners identify what has been unconsciously taken from their lives and equip them with new ways of thinking that support alignment and intentionality. The movement focuses on restoring control over areas of life that often become depleted without notice, including mental clarity, emotional bandwidth, personal purpose, and long-term vision.

Listeners can access the Make Life Less Taxing Podcast on YouTube through the dedicated channel, as well as on major podcast platforms. The series is intended for independent insurance and financial advisors, entrepreneurs, other financial professionals, and anyone seeking to make life feel lighter, clearer, and more aligned with their core values.
