December 01, 2025

SAN JOSE, CA - December 01, 2025 -
Outertainment Construction Inc., a full-service design-build firm based in San Jose, has announced the availability of its professional BBQ island installation service in additional Bay Area locations, including Saratoga, Los Gatos, Cupertino, Palo Alto, Los Altos, and nearby communities. The expansion marks a significant step for the company as it continues to meet the rising demand for functional and visually refined outdoor cooking spaces across Northern California.

The decision to extend the BBQ island installation service to new cities reflects Outertainment Construction Inc.?s long-term commitment to designing and building luxury outdoor environments. Known for its in-house expertise and hands-on project management, the firm continues to deliver solutions that merge structural integrity, elegant design, and modern practicality. By providing a single point of accountability from concept to completion, the company maintains complete quality control over every phase of the construction process.

A BBQ island serves as a central feature of many high-end backyard transformations, combining the utility of a full kitchen with the social appeal of an open-air setting. Outertainment Construction Inc. approaches each installation as an architectural extension of the home, integrating materials and layouts that align with the property?s overall aesthetic. The process involves thorough design consultations, precise site planning, and attention to safety standards governing gas, electrical, and ventilation systems.

Every project begins with a design evaluation led by the company?s licensed landscape design team. Using advanced visualization tools, clients can preview their new outdoor kitchen before construction starts. This digital planning stage allows for accurate material selection, appliance placement, and spatial configuration. The company utilizes weather-resistant materials, including stainless steel, stone, and concrete, to ensure durability in the Bay Area?s varied climate. All construction and installations are managed internally, reinforcing the firm?s reputation for consistent quality and efficiency.

?The goal has always been to build outdoor spaces that feel like a true extension of the home,? said Juan Jimenez, owner of Outertainment Construction Inc. ?The BBQ island installations are designed not only for function but to enhance the experience of gathering outdoors. Expanding this service to more cities allows homeowners across the Bay Area to enjoy that same balance of quality craftsmanship and thoughtful design.?

As the company extends this service to new regions, it continues to emphasize safety and regulatory compliance. Each installation adheres to local and state building codes, with a particular focus on ensuring proper ventilation and meeting fire safety requirements. The team?s familiarity with municipal permitting processes ensures that projects proceed smoothly and adhere to established timelines. This precision-based approach has been central to the company?s operations since its founding.

The addition of new locations for BBQ island installation coincides with increased demand for outdoor living upgrades throughout California. As more homeowners strive to transform their backyards into year-round entertainment spaces, integrated outdoor kitchens have become a key design feature. Outertainment Construction Inc. focuses on customization to meet the specific needs of each property, offering a range of configurations that can include countertops, refrigeration units, sinks, bar seating, and storage compartments.

Each project is tailored to its environment, ensuring proportion, accessibility, and comfort are considered throughout the design. The team incorporates drainage planning, gas line routing, and appliance clearances to ensure long-term performance and safety. Whether the design calls for a compact single-station island or a fully equipped outdoor kitchen, the installation process remains guided by the same principles of durability and precision.

By introducing the service to additional Bay Area communities, Outertainment Construction Inc. is continuing its mission to elevate residential outdoor living standards. The company?s work combines architectural discipline with a strong sense of lifestyle design, allowing homeowners to enjoy the social and functional benefits of outdoor dining with minimal maintenance. Each project reflects the company?s philosophy of merging craftsmanship with long-lasting value.

Founded in 2005, Outertainment Construction Inc. has built a portfolio of outdoor projects that include luxury landscape design, hardscape construction, swimming pools, pergolas, and custom entertainment areas. With the expansion of its BBQ island installation service, the firm continues to demonstrate its leadership in the design-build space by offering homeowners across the Bay Area reliable, design-driven solutions for creating cohesive, enduring outdoor environments.
