March 15, 2016 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Hao's TV Repair, a Santa Ana, California based company, has announced their 20th anniversary in business. As part of the celebration, the company states that they are reviving an old methodology of fixing the television first, instead of replacing it. Hao Tang, owner of the television repair company, states, "When we live in a world where it's so easy to throw things out, we take the time to treat your treasured family possession with utmost care in the fastest and most efficient way possible."

Hao Tang states that the company waives any service call fees if their technicians can diagnose the issue and fix the job right then and there. Because of this, they always strive for same day appointments and same day TV repair for anyone who calls. "We are also a mobile ready TV repair company," he says. "And we provide services around the clock, seven days a week and 365 days a year to all residents in Los Angeles, Orange County, Riverside, and San Bernardino County."

The company points out that customer loyalty has helped them to remain the preferred provider of Los Angeles TV repair for the past 20 years. Tang says that they are very proud to have reached this milestone and that they look forward to providing customers with the same high quality service for the next 20 years.

Hao Tang opened Hao's TV Repair in 1994, and the company has continued to grow ever since. With a huge number of successful repair jobs over the years, and many repeat customers, Hao Tang states that he has continued not only to survive in the industry, but to thrive, and that his customers are the reason that the company is now celebrating their 20th year in business.

Hao's TV Repair offers Los Angeles TV repair on a number of TV models ranging from LED, LCD, DLP, Plasma, 3D and the company states that customers are welcome to contact them at any time for a free estimate.
