

New St. Louis Company hosts Local Food Drive to Support Oakville Neighbors

December 10, 2025

ST. LOUIS, MO - December 10, 2025 -
Current Cannabis, a newly opened dispensary in South St. Louis County by Teal Remedies LLC, is proud to announce the launch of its inaugural St. Louis Food Drive, a community-centered effort created to support local families facing hardship during the holiday season. This initiative marks an important milestone for the company, reflecting its foundational commitment to giving back and strengthening the communities it serves.

Located at 4455 Telegraph Rd. in Oakville, Current Cannabis is stepping into its role as a new neighborhood business by actively engaging in efforts that extend far beyond its storefront. With food insecurity impacting thousands of families throughout the St. Louis region, the company is using its platform to inspire generosity and create opportunities for residents to support neighbors in need. Throughout the duration of the campaign, customers and Oakville community members are invited to donate non-perishable food items, all of which will be distributed directly to local food programs serving households across South County.

?As a new business in Oakville, part of our mission is to be a positive force in the community from day one,?

said Adolphus Busch V, CEO of Current Cannabis. ?Our customers are the heart of this neighborhood, and this is one small way we can show appreciation and support. We?re inviting everyone?from first-time visitors to our biggest fans?to help us make a meaningful difference. Even one item can help a local family.?

The food drive reflects a broader vision for Current Cannabis as it establishes its place in the community. The company aims to launch ongoing outreach programs that focus on compassion, accessibility, and community elevation, ensuring that its business presence contributes positively to the well-being of South County residents. Team members will be actively participating in the food drive by volunteering time, collecting goods, and helping promote awareness about local hunger challenges.

Upon entering the dispensary, donors will find a clearly marked drop-off area, informational signage, and staff available to answer questions about the initiative. The display highlights the importance of the food drive, offers guidance on what types of donations are most needed, and explains how contributions will be delivered to local partner organizations.

To encourage participation and show appreciation for community involvement, Current Cannabis is offering exclusive in-store benefits to customers who contribute items during their visit. These special perks will remain available through the end of 2025, underscoring the company?s ongoing commitment to generosity and community engagement throughout the holiday season.

The St. Louis Food Drive is just the beginning of Current Cannabis?s long-term community involvement efforts. As the business continues to grow, it plans to collaborate with additional neighborhood organizations, nonprofits, and civic groups to support year-round initiatives centered on service and support.

For Oakville residents, local shoppers, and supporters across South County, the company hopes the food drive will spark unity, compassion, and a shared sense of responsibility during the holidays.
