WorkInjuryRights.com Expanding Tampa Office to Serve Growing Demand for Workers Compensation Representation

December 08, 2025

TAMPA, FL - December 08, 2025 -
WorkInjuryRights.com is expanding its Tampa presence with increased resources and staffing at its downtown office at 100 Ashley Dr S, Suite 600, effective December 2025. The 13-attorney firm, founded in 2014, is strengthening its commitment to injured workers across Hillsborough County and the greater Tampa Bay region to meet rising demand for workers compensation representation.

The expansion follows concerning workplace safety trends in Florida, where the construction sector alone recorded 92 workplace fatalities in 2023 according to federal Bureau of Labor Statistics data. Falls, slips, and trips accounted for 43 of those construction deaths, representing the leading cause of fatal workplace injuries statewide. Florida construction workers experienced 3,490 nonfatal occupational injuries and illnesses requiring medical treatment beyond first aid in 2019, with recent years showing similar patterns.

WorkInjuryRights.com specializes in representing injured workers in workers compensation claims across Florida. Each WorkInjuryRights.com workers' compensation lawyer handles cases involving construction accidents, falls from heights, machinery injuries, and other workplace incidents. Since its founding on July 5, 2014, the Miami-based work injury law firm has secured significant recoveries for clients, including a $2 million settlement for a worker who suffered traumatic brain injury after falling from a roof and a $750,000 settlement for a heavy equipment mechanic who sustained complex fractures to both legs.

"The complexities surrounding workers compensation claims can be substantial, and it's crucial for those injured on the job to receive the benefits they deserve," stated a company representative. "We're committed to assisting clients through every step of the process to help them achieve a fair outcome."

Tampa's status as a major logistics and distribution hub has contributed to increased commercial activity and corresponding workplace safety concerns. The region's construction boom, driven by population growth and infrastructure development, has placed additional workers in high-risk environments. Healthcare, manufacturing, and transportation industries in the Tampa Bay area also generate substantial numbers of workplace injury cases requiring legal representation.

Florida operates under a no-fault workers compensation system requiring most employers to carry coverage for workplace injuries. Workers injured on the job must report incidents to supervisors within 30 days and navigate complex insurance procedures to secure medical treatment and wage replacement benefits. Many injured workers face claim denials or benefit limitations from insurance carriers, creating the need for experienced legal counsel to protect their rights under Florida workers compensation law.

The Tampa office represents WorkInjuryRights.com's strategic response to documented need for workers compensation lawyer services in the region. Hillsborough County's diverse economy spans construction, healthcare, logistics, hospitality, and manufacturing sectors, each presenting distinct workplace hazards and injury patterns. The firm's attorneys handle cases involving traumatic brain injuries, broken bones, back injuries, repetitive stress disorders, and occupational illnesses resulting from toxic exposure.

WorkInjuryRights.com attorneys represent workers in disputes with insurance carriers over medical treatment authorization, temporary disability payments, permanent impairment ratings, and claim denials. The work injury law firm operates on a contingency fee basis with no upfront costs to clients. The firm's case experience includes a $1.45 million settlement for a traveling employee who sustained traumatic brain injury in a rollover motor vehicle accident covered under workers compensation insurance.

The Tampa office will provide initial consultations, case evaluations, and ongoing representation for injured workers throughout the claims process. Attorneys will assist clients with reporting requirements, medical documentation, insurance communications, and administrative hearings before judges of compensation claims when disputes require formal resolution.

The firm's presence in Tampa reflects broader patterns in Florida's workplace safety landscape, where construction remains among the most hazardous industries. Transportation incidents, machinery accidents, falls from elevation, and caught-in or caught-between hazards continue generating serious injuries requiring workers compensation claims. The firm now serves Tampa-area clients locally, closer to injured workers in the region's major employment centers.

WorkInjuryRights.com provides legal representation for workers compensation cases throughout Florida. Additional information about the firm's services and Tampa office is available at workinjuryrights.com.
