CP McGinty Jewelers Unveils Custom Jewelry Design Services

December 05, 2025

CAPE GIRARDEAU, MO - December 05, 2025 -
CP McGinty Jewelers has unveiled custom jewelry design services that allow customers to create personalized pieces based on individual concepts. This service addresses the demand for unique jewelry not found in standard inventories. The process involves collaboration with the store's expert team to develop designs that incorporate specific ideas or update existing items.

The custom jewelry offerings enable the transformation of family heirlooms into contemporary designs while preserving sentimental elements. Customers provide input on materials, styles, and features to produce pieces that align with personal preferences. This approach supports the creation of jewelry for various occasions, including engagements or personal milestones.

CP McGinty Jewelers maintains an inventory that includes engagement rings and fashion jewelry from brands such as Kendra Scott and Fire Fly. Engagement rings feature classic styles crafted to symbolize commitments, with options in different settings and metals. Fashion jewelry encompasses bold rings, layered necklaces, and eye-catching earrings suitable for everyday or special use.

Charles McGinty, Co-Owner of CP McGinty Jewelers, explained the custom process. "Custom jewelry design involves working closely with customers to select appropriate materials and forms, resulting in pieces that reflect individual visions," McGinty said.

The store's custom jewelry design services in Cape Girardeau, MO, extend to incorporating elements like specific gemstones or engravings into new creations. This flexibility allows for the production of rings, necklaces, or other items that hold personal significance. The expert team guides clients through each step, from initial concepts to final execution, ensuring alignment with quality standards.

In addition to custom work, the store offers curated collections that highlight timeless designs. These include seasonal looks with trending elements, providing inspiration for custom projects. Kendra Scott pieces feature colorful and versatile options, while Fire Fly items emphasize delicate craftsmanship.

Samuel McGinty, Co-Owner, noted the store's experience in this area. "Over 45 years of operation have equipped CP McGinty Jewelers to handle custom jewelry requests, drawing on established practices to meet current needs," McGinty said.

CP McGinty Jewelers ensures that all custom pieces adhere to criteria for durability and aesthetic value. The service complements the existing selection of designer jewelry, offering a comprehensive range for customers. Curbside pickup is available for those preferring convenient access to completed items.

The custom design process begins with consultations to outline requirements and explore possibilities. Staff assist in refining ideas into feasible designs, utilizing knowledge of jewelry construction. This method has supported the creation of numerous personalized items over the years.

Engagement rings can be customized through this service, allowing for modifications to standard models. Options include adjustments to band styles, stone placements, or metal types to suit specific tastes. Fashion jewelry from the brands carried provides additional bases for customization.

The store's focus on craftsmanship extends to all offerings, with custom jewelry representing a key component. This service reflects adaptations to customer interests in personalization. The inventory spans various price points to accommodate different budgets, ensuring that every client can find something perfect for their needs and preferences.

CP McGinty Jewelers operates with a commitment to providing jewelry that combines quality and individuality. The custom services enhance the store's role in serving those seeking distinctive pieces.

CP McGinty Jewelers has served the local area for over 45 years as a provider of designer jewelry, engagement rings, and custom designs. The family-owned business emphasizes craftsmanship in its selections, making each piece a reflection of the client's unique story.
