Jewelers Trade Shop Observes Peak Proposal Season with Focus on Engagement Rings

December 05, 2025

PENSACOLA, FL - December 05, 2025 -
Jewelers Trade Shop recognizes the heightened interest in engagement rings in Pensacola, FL, during the holiday season, a time when nearly 40 percent of marriage proposals occur between November and February. This period aligns with the company's preparations for its 70th anniversary in 2026, marking continued service to the Pensacola area since its establishment in 1956.

The business provides a range of jewelry items, including those from the Gabriel Co. bridal collection. Engagement rings within this line feature various designs with diamonds and gemstones, available in different settings and metal types. Custom design options allow for adjustments to these pieces based on specific requirements.

Repair services handle maintenance tasks such as resizing and restoration for jewelry, including engagement rings. These offerings have supported customers over the decades, contributing to the company's presence in the community.

In addition to bridal items, the inventory includes watches from Rolex, with certified pre-owned models available. The Datejust serves as an example of the timepieces carried. The company shares information on the Rolex SailGP Championship, an international sailing event sponsored by the brand.

The holiday season in 2025 corresponds with data showing that 40 percent of proposals take place between Thanksgiving and Valentine's Day. Jewelers Trade Shop maintains its selections to accommodate this trend, drawing from its history of jewelry provision.

Corbett Davis III, Owner of Jewelers Trade Shop, addressed the seasonal pattern. "The concentration of proposals during the holidays has been consistent, and engagement rings remain a key part of our inventory to meet community needs," said Davis.

Further statistics indicate that December sees an increase in proposal activity, with distribution ranging from 7 percent to 9 percent in other months but rising in the final month of the year. The business positions its bridal collections accordingly, including options for pairing with wedding bands.

As the 70th anniversary approaches, Jewelers Trade Shop reflects on its founding in 1956 and the evolution of its services. The inclusion of branded watches has supplemented the core focus on custom designs and repairs.

Davis offered additional context on the milestone. "Approaching our 70th year underscores the role of engagement rings and other jewelry in serving generations in Pensacola," said Davis.

Social media updates from the company include references to holiday shopping, providing information on available items. These communications connect with local residents, sharing details on collections.

Since its inception, Jewelers Trade Shop has incorporated certified pre-owned Rolex watches, expanding access to such products. This development has occurred alongside the maintenance of bridal and custom services.

The Gabriel Co. line offers structured choices for engagement rings, with possibilities for personalization through gemstone selection or engraving. These features have been part of the offerings for years.

Information on the SailGP Championship highlights Rolex's global sponsorship, involving competitions in various locations. This content informs about the brand's activities beyond timepieces.
