Manor Works Painting Expands Seasonal Services with Professional Holiday Lighting Installation Across Northern Virginia

December 09, 2025

December 09, 2025 -
Manor Works Painting, a residential painting and carpentry company based in Aldie, Virginia, has announced the launch of its Holiday Lighting Installation service, available to homeowners across Loudoun, Fairfax, and Prince William counties. The addition expands the company?s service portfolio to include seasonal exterior lighting installation focused on safety, efficiency, and consistent workmanship.

Established in 1998, Manor Works Painting has served Northern Virginia for more than two decades, offering interior and exterior painting, carpentry, and surface preparation. The decision to introduce holiday lighting installations was based on growing demand for professional assistance with outdoor lighting projects requiring specialized equipment and trained personnel.

The Holiday Lighting Installation program includes three key components: design planning, installation, and post-season removal. Each stage follows procedures that align with the company?s operating standards for residential work. Clients receive an on-site consultation and detailed estimate, followed by a layout plan covering lighting types, placement, and electrical needs. Installations are scheduled ahead of the holiday period to ensure safe setup and completion before adverse weather.

Lucia Tirondola, owner of Manor Works Painting, said the expansion aligns with the company?s focus on practical residential solutions. ?Many residents prefer to delegate outdoor lighting to professionals with proper equipment and safety training,? Lucia Tirondola said. ?This program offers an organized and secure way for families to display exterior lighting without the risks associated with working at height or managing electrical connections during winter.?

All work is completed by Manor Works employees rather than subcontractors. The full-time team receives regular instruction in ladder safety, fall protection, and residential electrical awareness. Installations use UL-certified materials rated for exterior conditions. The emphasis on direct employment and continual training ensures consistent oversight and accountability at every project stage.

Lighting designs are tailored for each property and may include roofline illumination, tree and shrub wrapping, and architectural outlining, windows, and entryways. Both LED and traditional incandescent styles can be installed, depending on preference. Technicians conduct safety checks on all electrical connections and, when requested, install timers or smart control systems to maintain compliance with local building codes and homeowner association requirements.

Lucia Tirondola added that the service also addresses time limitations many homeowners face during the holidays. ?People often want decorative lighting but lack the time or ability to install it safely,? she said. ?Our process makes setup predictable and efficient, and installations are labeled for easy removal or reuse the following season.?

Following installation, the company offers optional removal beginning in early January. The same crew handles disassembly, inspection, and packing, eliminating the need for homeowners to climb ladders or manage wiring after weeks of exposure to winter weather. Clients who wish to reuse their lighting can request labeled packaging for organized storage between seasons.

The new lighting program reflects a broader regional trend toward professional outdoor services combining safety and design compliance. Manor Works Painting expects the addition to support steady employment for its staff by offering seasonal work that complements its winter interior painting schedule.

As part of the rollout, the company has introduced quality-control steps for lighting projects, including pre- and post-installation inspections, adherence to Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) guidelines, and the use of weather-resistant fasteners that prevent damage to home surfaces. Crews are trained to protect landscaping, gutters, and roofing materials during installation.

The Holiday Lighting Installation service is available in Aldie, Great Falls, McLean, and surrounding communities in Northern Virginia. Expansion within these areas was guided by the company?s established client base and operational capacity. Plans to review demand and customer feedback after the first season to assess additional service areas.

Lucia Tirondola stated that the long-term goal is to continue diversifying offerings while maintaining consistent workmanship. ?Our focus has always been on strengthening our core services and introducing new capabilities that fit within our operational structure. This addition was designed to maintain the same level of coordination and professionalism seen in our painting projects,? she said.

The program is open for scheduling, with consultations available at no cost. Homeowners may request an appointment through the company?s website or by contacting the main office. Availability will be managed on a first-come, first-served basis during the peak decorating period from late November through early December.
