

A&M Roofing - Springfield Announces Expanded Manufacturer Certifications for Northern Virginia Roofing Services

December 23, 2025

SPRINGFIELD, VA - December 23, 2025 -

A&M Roofing - Springfield has announced the expansion of its manufacturer certification portfolio, adding new accreditations from multiple industry brands to serve residential customers across Northern Virginia. The Springfield-based company, which has operated in the region for nearly twenty years, now holds certifications from Velux, Mastic, ProVia, Simonton, and James Hardie alongside its existing roofing manufacturer partnerships.

The expanded certifications enable the company to offer enhanced warranty coverage across multiple exterior home improvement categories including roofing, skylight installation, window and door replacement, siding installation, and gutter systems. As a certified roof installer, the company maintains an A+ rating with the Better Business Bureau and membership in both the Virginia Association of Roofing Professionals and the Northern Virginia Chamber of Commerce.

"The addition of these manufacturer certifications reflects changes in homeowner needs and industry standards," said Mark Collins of A&M Roofing - Springfield. "These partnerships allow us to provide comprehensive warranty protection across all exterior services, from asphalt shingle roofing to fiber cement siding installation. The certifications require ongoing training and adherence to specific installation protocols established by each manufacturer."

The company's certification as a Velux Certified Installer covers skylight products including sun tunnels and solar-powered units with rain sensors. The Mastic Preferred Siding Contractor designation applies to vinyl siding installations, while certifications from ProVia and Simonton cover window and door replacement services. The James Hardie certification encompasses fiber cement siding products.

A&M Roofing - Springfield's roofing services include installation of asphalt shingles, synthetic slate, flat roofing systems, and metal roofing materials. The company fabricates seamless aluminum gutters on-site in 5-inch and 6-inch configurations and installs gutter protection systems. These services are available to residential properties throughout Northern Virginia's communities.

Industry data from the National Roofing Contractors Association indicates that manufacturer certifications have become increasingly important in the roofing sector, with certified contractors accounting for approximately 40 percent of residential roofing installations nationwide. These certifications typically require contractors to meet specific insurance requirements, complete product training programs, and maintain minimum installation volumes.

"Manufacturer partnerships provide homeowners with extended warranty options that go beyond standard installation guarantees," added Collins. "Each certification program has distinct requirements for material handling, installation techniques, and documentation. This standardization helps ensure consistent installation quality across different product lines."

Northern Virginia roofers increasingly seek multiple certifications as homeowners undertake comprehensive exterior renovations rather than single-service projects. The trend toward bundled exterior services has grown in the Northern Virginia market, with contractors offering integrated solutions for roofing, siding, windows, and gutter systems.

A&M Roofing - Springfield operates as a locally owned business serving Northern Virginia's residential market. The company specializes in exterior home improvement services with nearly two decades of operations in the region. Its service area encompasses multiple counties throughout Northern Virginia, providing roofing, siding, window, door, skylight, and gutter installation services to residential customers.
