RestoPros of Omaha Highlights IICRC Certification Standards for Professional Restoration Services

December 17, 2025

OMAHA, NE - December 17, 2025 -

RestoPros of Omaha continues to emphasize the importance of Institute of Inspection, Cleaning and Restoration Certification (IICRC) standards in delivering professional restoration services to residential and commercial clients throughout the greater Omaha area. The company maintains strict adherence to IICRC guidelines across all service offerings, including water damage restoration, fire and smoke damage restoration, mold remediation, storm damage restoration, and complete rebuild services.

The IICRC certification represents the gold standard in the restoration industry, establishing rigorous protocols for assessment, mitigation, and restoration procedures. This certification ensures that restoration professionals follow industry-approved methods that prioritize both effectiveness and safety in addressing property damage situations.

"IICRC certification isn't just a credential on the wall?it's a commitment to excellence that guides every aspect of our restoration work," said Sean Chandler, Owner of RestoPros of Omaha. "When property owners face emergencies, they deserve the confidence that comes from working with certified professionals who follow established industry standards and best practices."

The certification encompasses comprehensive training in water damage restoration techniques, including proper water extraction methods, scientific drying principles, and antimicrobial application protocols. These standardized procedures help prevent secondary damage, such as mold growth and structural deterioration, that can occur when water damage is not properly addressed.

For fire and smoke damage restoration, IICRC standards dictate specific cleaning techniques for different types of smoke residue and proper deodorization methods. The certification also covers crucial safety protocols for handling hazardous materials and ensuring indoor air quality during the restoration process.

RestoPros of Omaha applies these certification standards to every project, whether responding to a burst pipe in a residential home or managing large-scale commercial restoration following severe storm damage. The company's 24/7 emergency response team consists of technicians trained in IICRC protocols, ensuring consistent quality regardless of when disaster strikes.

"Following IICRC guidelines means we can provide property owners with detailed documentation of our restoration process, which is essential for insurance claims," added Chandler. "This systematic approach helps streamline the claims process and ensures that all necessary restoration steps are properly documented and executed."

The company's commitment to certification standards extends beyond initial training. RestoPros of Omaha invests in ongoing education to stay current with evolving industry standards and emerging restoration technologies. This dedication to continuous improvement helps ensure that clients receive restoration services that reflect the latest industry knowledge and techniques.
