

Word and Wealth Launches as a Digital Biblical Business Platform Centered on Books, Training, and Purpose-Driven Wealth Building

December 29, 2025

NEW YORK, NY - December 29, 2025 -
Word and Wealth, a new digital biblical business education platform, has officially launched to equip Christian entrepreneurs with the principles, resources, and training needed to build profitable businesses rooted in biblical wisdom.

Created for entrepreneurs who want alignment between faith and finances, Word and Wealth focuses on developing mindset, strategy, and skill through a scriptural lens. The platform exists to help believers steward wealth responsibly, create meaningful value in the marketplace, and grow businesses that generate sustainable revenue while honoring God.

At its core, Word and Wealth serves as a trusted guide, curating and recommending select books and training programs aligned with its biblical business philosophy. Rather than producing surface-level content or offering generic advice, the platform highlights proven resources that help entrepreneurs think differently about money, value creation, and long-term wealth building.

Books play a foundational role within the Word and Wealth ecosystem. These resources challenge scarcity-based thinking and introduce biblical principles of stewardship, ownership, leverage, and multiplication. By emphasizing disciplined thinking and timeless wisdom, the platform encourages entrepreneurs to build businesses on principles that endure beyond trends or tactics.

In addition to books, Word and Wealth provides access to structured business trainings and challenges designed to help entrepreneurs move from theory to execution. These trainings focus on practical outcomes such as increased business clarity, stronger and more compelling offers, and the ability to generate sustainable revenue. Entrepreneurs are guided through frameworks that support ethical growth, clear value communication, and scalable business models.

Word and Wealth was founded by Tim McGarvey, who created the platform to address the growing disconnect between faith and modern business education.

?Word and Wealth exists to help entrepreneurs close the gap between belief and behavior when it comes to business and money,? said Tim McGarvey, Founder, Word and Wealth. ?We believe wealth is not the destination?it?s a tool. When guided by biblical principles, business becomes a vehicle for impact, generosity, and lasting influence.?

The platform is intentionally designed to meet entrepreneurs at various stages of their journey?from early-stage builders seeking direction to experienced business owners refining their strategy and positioning. By curating trusted educational resources, Word and Wealth reduces noise and confusion in an oversaturated business education space and helps entrepreneurs focus on what actually drives results.

To further expand its educational reach, Word and Wealth is preparing to launch the Word and Wealth Podcast, an upcoming show dedicated to unpacking biblical business principles, wealth-building strategies, and practical applications drawn from leading books and training programs. The podcast will offer deep dives into key topics such as mindset renewal, offer creation, value positioning, financial stewardship, and faith-centered leadership.

Each episode will translate complex ideas into clear, actionable insights entrepreneurs can apply immediately in their businesses. While the podcast has not yet launched, it represents a key pillar of the Word and Wealth platform and will serve as an ongoing educational resource for faith-driven entrepreneurs worldwide.

Unlike traditional business education platforms that separate faith from finances, Word and Wealth intentionally integrates Scripture, strategy, and structure. The brand emphasizes that biblical principles are not opposed to profitability, but instead provide the foundation for clarity, confidence, and sustainable growth.

With a growing library of curated resources, upcoming podcast content, and continued expansion of training recommendations, Word and Wealth is positioned to become a trusted voice in faith-based business education for entrepreneurs seeking both profit and purpose.
