

Knoxville Car Accident Lawyer Releases Pedestrian Safety Guide Following 45% Drop in Traffic Deaths

January 14, 2026

KNOXVILLE, TN - January 14, 2026 -
Knoxville Car Accident Lawyer has released a comprehensive educational guide addressing pedestrian safety and victim rights, following the Knoxville Police Department's report that traffic fatalities decreased 45% in 2025, including a reduction in pedestrian deaths from 11 to 6.

The new guide comes as the city recorded its lowest number of traffic-related deaths since 2020, with total fatalities dropping from 52 in 2024 to 29 in 2025. Despite this improvement, the firm emphasizes that six pedestrian deaths still represent significant safety concerns, particularly along high-risk corridors such as North Broadway, which recorded six fatal crashes in 2025.

The educational resource covers critical topics, including understanding pedestrian rights after vehicle strikes, Tennessee's comparative negligence rules, immediate steps following accidents, and the state's one-year statute of limitations for filing injury claims. The guide specifically addresses the unique challenges faced by pedestrian accident victims compared to vehicle occupants, including more severe injuries due to a lack of protection and complex liability determinations.

"While the 45% reduction in traffic deaths demonstrates real progress toward Knoxville's Vision Zero goals, six pedestrian fatalities in 2025 still means six families devastated by preventable tragedies," said a firm representative. "Pedestrian accident victims face unique challenges, including catastrophic injuries and insurance companies that often attempt to shift blame. Understanding Tennessee's comparative negligence rules and the one-year statute of limitations is critical. Our firm remains committed to helping injured pedestrians navigate these complex legal matters while fighting for the maximum compensation they deserve."

The guide highlights concerning patterns in Knoxville pedestrian accidents, noting that between 2020 and 2025, Knox County experienced an estimated 14,000 total crashes annually. Research indicates approximately 15-20% of pedestrian crashes in the Knoxville area involve hit-and-run scenarios. Chapman Highway and Western Avenue each saw two fatal crashes in 2025, underscoring ongoing risks in these areas.

Tennessee follows a modified comparative negligence rule, allowing pedestrians to recover damages if less than 50% at fault for an accident. This legal framework, combined with the one-year statute of limitations for pedestrian accident claims, creates urgency for victims to seek legal counsel immediately after incidents.

Knoxville Car Accident Lawyer Pedestrian Accident Lawyer services have become increasingly vital as the city works toward its Vision Zero initiative goal of eliminating traffic deaths by 2040 through enforcement, education, and engineering improvements.

Common causes of pedestrian accidents addressed in the guide include distracted driving, speeding, failure to yield at crosswalks, driving under the influence, and poor visibility in inadequately lit areas. The resource provides detailed information about types of compensation available to victims, including medical expenses, lost wages, pain and suffering, and future medical care.

The firm notes that high-traffic areas near downtown Knoxville, the University of Tennessee campus, and major commercial corridors present elevated pedestrian risks. The guide emphasizes why pedestrian accident cases require specialized legal representation, particularly given the severity of injuries and complex insurance negotiations involved.
