

Mercer Hughes Property Management Promotes Bree Calley to Senior Property Manager in Valdosta

January 20, 2026

Valdosta, Georgia - January 20, 2026 -
Mercer Hughes Property Management today announced the promotion of Bree Calley to senior property manager, marking a significant leadership transition following the retirement of the company's previous property manager. The promotion recognizes Calley's years of dedicated service and extensive experience in the Valdosta rental market.

Calley previously served as assistant property manager for several years, during which time she developed comprehensive knowledge of the local rental landscape and built strong relationships with property owners and residents throughout the Valdosta area. Her promotion to senior property manager represents a natural progression in her career with the company, which manages rental properties across Valdosta and surrounding communities including Hahira, Lake Park, Lakeland, Adel, Quitman, and other parts of Lowndes County.

"Bree has consistently demonstrated strong leadership, outstanding communication, and a deep commitment to our owners and residents. Promoting her to Property Manager was a natural next step, and we are confident she will continue to elevate the level of service our clients expect from Mercer Hughes Property Management," said Dedra Hughes, a spokesperson from the company. "Property owners and prospective clients interested in learning more about the company's services can Learn More about our property management team through various channels."

The promotion comes at a time when the Valdosta rental market continues to experience steady growth, with increasing demand for professional property management services. Calley's extensive experience positions her well to guide property owners through the complexities of rental property management, from tenant screening and rent collection to maintenance coordination and financial reporting.

In her new role as senior property manager, Calley will oversee the company's comprehensive property management services, working closely with the existing team that includes property managers, administrative assistants, and property services coordinators. Her deep understanding of the Valdosta rental market, gained through years of hands-on experience, will be instrumental in helping property owners maximize their rental income while maintaining high standards of property care.

The leadership transition reflects Mercer Hughes Property Management's commitment to promoting from within and recognizing exceptional talent among its team members. The company's approach to professional development ensures continuity of service for property owners and residents alike, maintaining the high standards that have characterized the company's operations for years.

"Those seeking additional information about the company's reputation and client experiences can Visit our Yelp Profile for insights from the local community," continued Hughes. 'We also maintain an active social media presence, and interested parties can Find Us on IG for regular updates about property management tips and local market insights."
