MASSET, BC - January 28, 2026 -
Hiellen Village Longhouses, a cabin rental agency located in Masset, British Columbia, reports increased interest from travelers seeking authentic cultural experiences in Canada's remote Haida Gwaii archipelago. The property, which offers traditional-style cabin accommodations on Towhill Road, has positioned itself as a gateway for visitors exploring the ancient homeland of the Haida Nation.

The surge in cultural tourism to Haida Gwaii reflects broader travel trends favoring meaningful connections with Indigenous heritage sites and traditional territories. Located in the northern reaches of the archipelago near Masset, the property provides accommodation options for travelers visiting nearby cultural sites, beaches, and protected wilderness areas.

"We're seeing more visitors who want to experience Haida Gwaii beyond just the scenery," said a spokesperson for Hiellen Village Longhouses. "They're interested in understanding the cultural significance of this place, visiting the heritage sites, and learning about the Haida Nation's connection to these lands and waters. Our location serves as a practical base for these explorations while offering a glimpse into traditional architectural styles."

The accommodations at Hiellen Village Longhouses in Haida Gwaii feature design elements inspired by traditional coastal structures, though adapted with modern amenities for contemporary travelers. The property maintains a 4.8 out of 5 rating based on guest reviews, with visitors particularly noting the location's proximity to both cultural attractions and natural sites.

Haida Gwaii, formerly known as the Queen Charlotte Islands, encompasses approximately 150 islands off British Columbia's north coast. The archipelago is home to the Haida Nation and contains numerous protected heritage sites, including ancient village locations, monumental poles, and culturally modified trees. Tourism to the region has steadily increased as travelers seek destinations that combine natural beauty with cultural depth.

The property's location near Masset provides access to multiple points of interest for cultural tourism. Visitors can explore nearby beaches, including the expansive North Beach, visit the Haida Heritage Centre at Kay Llnagaay, or arrange tours to remote village sites that showcase centuries of Haida civilization. The area also serves as a departure point for fishing expeditions and wildlife viewing opportunities, including whale watching and bird observation.

Accommodation providers throughout Haida Gwaii have noted shifting visitor priorities, with many guests now planning longer stays to allow for deeper cultural engagement. This trend has encouraged properties to provide more information about local heritage sites, traditional practices, and the ongoing cultural revitalization efforts of the Haida Nation.

The growing interest in Indigenous tourism experiences across Canada has brought increased attention to destinations like Haida Gwaii, where visitors can engage with living cultures rather than simply viewing historical artifacts. This shift represents both an opportunity and a responsibility for accommodation providers to facilitate respectful cultural exchanges while supporting local communities.

Hiellen Village Longhouses operates year-round, though peak visitation occurs during the summer months when weather conditions are most favorable for outdoor exploration. The property offers various cabin configurations to accommodate different group sizes, with standard check-in at 3:00 PM and check-out at 11:00 AM.
