

PSCI Expands Focus on Product, PMO, and Digital Transformation Talent

January 16, 2026

Wilmington, Delaware - January 16, 2026 -
PSCI announced an expanded organizational focus on supporting demand for product management, project management office, and digital transformation talent across enterprise technology initiatives, reflecting ongoing shifts in how organizations staff and execute complex programs. The initiative builds on PSCI?s long-standing role as an IT staffing agency providing both project-based and permanent placement services for technology-driven organizations. The company operates from its headquarters in Wilmington, Delaware, and works with clients across multiple industries seeking specialized technology and program leadership skills.

?Organizations continue to adjust how they structure and deliver technology initiatives, and that has changed the types of roles they need to fill,? said Sean O?Neill, President and CEO of PSCI. ?PSCI?s focus is centered on aligning experienced professionals with programs that require structured governance, cross-functional coordination, and long-term transformation planning.?

The increased emphasis on product, PMO, and digital transformation talent reflects broader market trends in which enterprises are prioritizing portfolio oversight, enterprise-wide modernization, and sustained delivery models. Product leaders and PMO professionals are often tasked with balancing strategic objectives, regulatory requirements, and operational constraints, while digital transformation roles frequently span technology, process, and organizational change. PSCI?s staffing activities in these areas are intended to support organizations managing multi-year initiatives and evolving delivery frameworks.

Founded in 1993, PSCI has operated for more than three decades as an IT staffing agency serving organizations with varying workforce needs. The firm provides staffing solutions for both temporary project engagements and permanent placements, allowing companies to address short-term delivery requirements as well as long-term organizational planning. Over time, PSCI has expanded its engagement model to support roles that intersect technology execution, governance, and business alignment.

PSCI?s business growth has been recognized by several independent organizations. The company earned placement on the Philadelphia 100 list of fastest-growing privately held regional companies for three consecutive years, reflecting sustained expansion over that period. PSCI was also named by Inc. magazine as one of the fastest-growing privately held companies in the United States for three consecutive years, a designation based on verified revenue growth data published by Inc.com.

Industry participation has also been part of PSCI?s operational approach. The company has taken part in events hosted by TechServe Alliance, a national trade organization for U.S.-based IT and engineering staffing and consulting firms, since 2002. PSCI has adhered to the organization?s business principles since its founding, which emphasize ethical conduct, transparency, and professional standards within the staffing industry.

In addition to its commercial operations, PSCI has maintained involvement with a range of charitable and community organizations over the years. Contributions and participation have included support for national and regional nonprofits such as the Wounded Warrior Project, the American Red Cross, United Way, Junior Achievement, and the Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer Foundation. The company has also supported education- and youth-focused initiatives, including FIRST Robotics Competition and the Police Athletic League of Delaware, as well as health and family service organizations serving the local community.

PSCI?s recognition as a top recruiting firm by Business Insider reflects its visibility within the broader staffing and recruiting landscape. That recognition highlighted firms demonstrating sustained growth, operational scale, and engagement across multiple talent categories. PSCI remains the only firm headquartered in Wilmington, Delaware, to have achieved three consecutive years of national recognition on Inc.?s growth rankings.

As organizations continue to invest in modernization, cloud migration, data initiatives, and enterprise program governance, demand for experienced product, PMO, and transformation professionals is expected to remain steady. PSCI?s staffing focus in these areas aligns with its broader history of supporting technology-driven initiatives that require coordination between technical teams and business stakeholders. The firm continues to work with clients seeking structured approaches to program delivery and workforce planning.
