CHESTER SPRINGS, PA - January 15, 2026 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Magic Memories, a provider of preschool and child care in Chester and Montgomery Counties, PA, highlights its Home Economics program as a key component of its curriculum designed to foster essential life skills in young students. This hands-on initiative integrates practical activities into daily learning, supporting children's growth in independence, teamwork, and healthy habits.

The Home Economics program at Magic Memories engages students through activities such as cooking, gardening, and simple household tasks. These experiences allow children to develop real-world skills in a supportive environment. By participating in these lessons, students learn responsibility and build confidence that extends beyond the classroom. The program aligns with the organization's commitment to comprehensive early education, complementing other enrichments like Sign Language, Yoga, Mindfulness, Physical Education, in-class visitors, and field trips.

Magic Memories operates multiple locations across Chester and Montgomery Counties, including Chester Springs, Colledgeville, Jeffersonville, Norristown, Phoenixville, Plymouth Meeting, and Royersford. Each center maintains high standards, as evidenced by its STAR 4 rating in the Keystone STARS program, which recognizes quality in early and school-age care. The organization serves children from six weeks to 12 years old, with age-specific groups ranging from infants in the Fireflies and Turtles classrooms to before- and after-school care for Super Sharks.

In the Home Economics sessions, children explore concepts like meal preparation and plant care, which encourage sensory development and fine motor skills. These activities also promote social interaction, as students work together on projects, learning to share resources and communicate effectively. The program's structure ensures that lessons are age-appropriate, adapting to the needs of toddlers, preschoolers, and pre-kindergarten students.

Neydary Zambrano, Owner of Magic Memories, stated, "The Home Economics program represents our dedication to preparing children for lifelong success by teaching practical skills early on. Through these engaging activities, students gain a foundation in independence that supports their overall development."

The integration of Home Economics into the tuition-inclusive enrichments eliminates additional fees for families, making high-quality education accessible. This approach reflects Magic Memories' mission to partner with parents and teachers in providing personal care and attention. The organization's focus on cognitive, social, and academic growth creates a rich learning environment where children thrive.

Meagan Foster, Regional Director at Magic Memories, added, "Home Economics lessons help children build healthy habits and teamwork in a fun setting. We see students develop confidence as they master everyday tasks, which contributes to their readiness for future challenges."

Beyond Home Economics, Magic Memories offers programs like Learning Beyond Paper, which features thought-provoking lessons tailored to individual learning styles, and STEAM activities that introduce science, technology, engineering, arts, and mathematics through experiments. Potty training support guides children toward independence in personal care, while annual events such as the Holiday Show, Talent Show, and Graduation build public speaking skills and community spirit.

Parent engagement remains a priority, with two annual surveys, parent-teacher conferences, monthly PTA meetings, and regular progress reports. Families have shared positive experiences, noting the nurturing atmosphere and preparation for kindergarten. The use of state-of-the-art sanitization methods, including Zono cabinets at several locations, ensures a safe environment.

Magic Memories' staff includes professionals with credentials exceeding state standards, with 64 percent holding a Child Development Associate degree or higher. The onsite senior management team facilitates direct communication and collaboration among staff, parents, and children.

As a locally owned entity, Magic Memories emphasizes affordable, high-quality care. Its unwavering commitment to excellence has earned recognitions, including the 2023 Brick and Mortar award for Neydary Zambrano as an AL DIA Top Entrepreneur Honoree and the 2019 Owner of the Year award.

The Home Economics program exemplifies how Magic Memories addresses the holistic needs of young learners. By incorporating life skills into early education, the organization supports children's transition to school and beyond. This focus on practical learning complements academic preparation, ensuring students develop a well-rounded skill set.

In Chester Springs, under Director Amber McCormick, the program adapts to local community needs, while in
