Agency Expands Overnight Newborn Support Services Nationwide

February 02, 2026

PHOENIX, AZ - February 02, 2026 -
The Newborn Care Solutions Agency, the only newborn care placement agency founded by an internationally accredited training provider, announces expanded newborn care specialist services to meet increasing demand from professional families across the United States. The expansion includes enhanced availability for extended shift arrangements and specialized infant care support.

The agency's network of certified specialists provides comprehensive overnight care arrangements ranging from eight to twelve-hour shifts, addressing the critical need for parental rest during the postpartum period. Executive families, entrepreneurs, and high-net-worth households increasingly recognize that professional nighttime support enables them to maintain demanding schedules while ensuring their newborns receive expert attention.

Beyond basic care, the agency's specialists bring expertise in evidence-based methodologies including sleep shaping approaches, feeding guidance, and developmental support. This comprehensive skill set helps families establish healthy routines during the fourth trimester, setting foundations for long-term infant wellness.

While headquartered in Scottsdale, Arizona, the agency serves families nationwide across premium markets including Beverly Hills, Manhattan, the Hamptons, Aspen, Miami Beach, and hundreds of affluent communities throughout the country. This extensive geographic reach ensures that discerning families from coast to coast have access to the same caliber of professionally trained specialists.

Families planning for a new arrival benefit significantly from early engagement with the agency. Contacting the placement team four to six months before the expected due date provides access to the largest selection of highly qualified candidates and optimal scheduling flexibility. For those with more immediate needs, the agency can often accommodate urgent placement requests within one to two weeks, depending on specialist availability.

"Parents consistently tell us that having professional support through those early weeks transforms their postpartum experience," said Tonya Sakowicz, Founder and CEO of The Newborn Care Solutions Agency. "Our specialists work collaboratively with families to develop routines that align with their parenting philosophy while drawing on proven practices."

Newborn Care Specialists are non-medical professionals with specialized training in infant care, distinct from licensed nurses or medical providers. These experts focus on establishing healthy sleep patterns, supporting feeding goals including breastfeeding assistance, and educating parents on newborn development milestones. Many families searching for overnight infant support use terms such as baby nurse or night nanny, though certified Newborn Care Specialists offer a higher level of specialized training specifically focused on the unique needs of newborns from birth through six months.

Each specialist in the agency's network undergoes rigorous vetting through a proprietary assessment process that exceeds industry standards. Many hold additional credentials including CACHE International certification, lactation consulting qualifications, and postpartum doula training. Background screening is conducted in compliance with local, state, and federal regulations.

CACHE International serves as an accreditation and certification body based in the United Kingdom, recognized worldwide as the gold standard for educational programs serving child caregivers. This third-party credential distinguishes the agency from competitors and provides families with verifiable assurance of quality standards.

The agency's unique education-to-placement pipeline ensures consistent quality across all referrals. As the only placement agency with roots in internationally accredited training programs, The Newborn Care

Solutions Agency maintains standards that reflect current evidence-based practices in newborn care and family support.
