February 04, 2026

SARASOTA, FL - February 04, 2026 -
Unlimited Comfort Mattress Factory, a Sarasota-based manufacturer, announced updates to its handcrafted mattress production processes and expanded delivery capabilities serving Southwest Florida communities, including North Port and surrounding areas.

The manufacturing facility, located on Clark Road in Sarasota, has implemented new quality control measures and production techniques across its five mattress model lines. These updates coincide with the company's expansion of delivery services throughout the region as demand for locally manufactured sleep products increases.

"We have refined our manufacturing processes to address specific sleep support requirements identified through customer feedback and industry research," said a representative from Unlimited Comfort Mattress Factory. "These production updates allow us to maintain consistent quality standards while meeting growing regional demand."

As a Mattress Store North Port area residents utilize, the facility has documented increased production volume to meet local market requirements. The company's 15-year warranty coverage and lifetime comfort guarantee program allow customers to modify mattress firmness levels after purchase, addressing long-term sleep preference changes.

The company produces five distinct mattress models at its Sarasota facility. The Cloud 11th model incorporates the American Comfort2000 Pocketed Coil System with zippered access for post-purchase adjustments. The Diamond model features Energex and pulse latex foam construction with medium-firm support specifications. The Infinity model utilizes memory foam technology combined with a three-zoned pocketed coil system. The Paradise model employs the American Comfort800 Pocketed Coil System for softer support preferences, while the SRQ model provides firm support through reinforced coil construction.

Manufacturing operations have expanded to include custom sizing for recreational vehicles and marine applications, responding to Southwest Florida's recreational vehicle and boating communities. The company also produces adjustable power bases and maintains educational resources through its sleep health information platform.

Mattress Delivery in North Port represents one component of the company's regional distribution network. The manufacturer's direct-to-consumer model eliminates intermediary distribution costs while maintaining oversight of product quality from production through delivery.

"The ability to manufacture locally allows us to respond quickly to market needs and maintain quality control throughout the production process," added the company representative. "Our Sarasota facility enables us to serve Southwest Florida communities with products manufactured specifically for regional preferences."

The manufacturing updates align with industry trends toward customizable sleep solutions and locally sourced products. According to industry data, consumer preference for locally manufactured goods has increased, particularly in markets where manufacturers can provide direct service and support.
