Heits Building Services Inc., a business in Golden Valley, MN, is proud to announce the launch of their new website. The site clearly highlights the janitorial services that the company offers, as well as their other building services. Furthermore, the site enables people to request for a free quotation for the services that they require.

Robin Handy from Heits Building Services Inc. says: "We believe in providing a service with a difference. Our motto is to be professional, personalized and hands on, and this is perfectly demonstrated through our new website. We're really happy with what the design team has come up with, and it is good to see that many commercial property owners are already coming to us for more information."

Heits sets itself apart through a number of specific things. Firstly, they use trained 'clean green teams', which means that they use environmentally preferred cleaning methods and products. Additionally, they have packages available that are suitable for specific industries, including dialysis centers, office buildings, day care centers and health clubs, each of which has very particular needs in terms of cleaning.

Besides cleaning, the company also offers various other maintenance options, such as window cleaning, power washing and painting. They have effectively set themselves apart as the go-to, one stop shop for all commercial janitorial services and more. Those who have used their service have been very pleased with what has been provided for them. "Great job, appreciate seeing the pictures," says Di S. on the company's website. "It's nice to know they understand the scope of work they are doing and doing a fine job too. This was a success, Heits is a great company to have chosen to do the job needed and do it correctly."

The new Heits - Minneapolis Cleaning Services website also clearly highlights the company's commitment to excellence. For instance, they regularly conduct quality performance reviews, thereby ensuring that their service is always fit for purpose and the needs of their clients. Finally, they offer a centralized call tracking response system, which ensures people can have their questions answered quickly, accurately, conveniently, and professionally.
