Peppy Heating and Cooling Addresses Growing Concerns Over Private Equity Ownership in HVAC Industry

February 09, 2026

Boise, Idaho - February 09, 2026 -
Peppy Heating & Cooling, a family-owned HVAC contractor serving the Treasure Valley region, is highlighting the importance of truly local ownership in the heating and cooling industry as private equity firms continue acquiring regional and national HVAC companies across the United States.

The trend of private equity acquisitions in the HVAC sector has accelerated significantly over the past five years, with investment firms purchasing hundreds of heating and cooling companies nationwide. Many of these acquired companies continue operating under their original names while becoming part of larger corporate structures, creating confusion for homeowners seeking genuinely local service providers.

This shift in ownership structure has raised concerns among industry observers about the potential impact on service quality, pricing transparency, and community relationships that have traditionally defined the HVAC service sector. Local contractors like Peppy Heating & Cooling maintain that independent, family-owned businesses offer distinct advantages in understanding and serving their communities' specific needs.

"When homeowners call for HVAC service, they deserve to know whether they're working with a truly local company or a corporate entity," said Brett Shannon of Peppy Heating & Cooling. "Family-owned businesses like ours have deep roots in the community. We live here, our children go to school here, and we have a personal stake in ensuring every customer receives exceptional service because our reputation depends on it."

The distinction between locally-owned and corporate-owned HVAC companies extends beyond ownership structure. Independent contractors typically offer more flexible scheduling, personalized service approaches, and direct accountability to the communities they serve. These businesses often maintain long-term relationships with customers, understanding their specific system histories and home comfort preferences.

Peppy Heating & Cooling exemplifies this local approach through its comprehensive service offerings throughout the Treasure Valley, including Nampa, Meridian, Caldwell, Eagle, Payette, Fruitland, and Emmett. As the only Mitsubishi Diamond Dealer in Boise, the company combines local expertise with recognized technical excellence in both traditional and ductless HVAC systems.

"The difference between working with a truly local contractor versus a corporate-owned company often becomes apparent in the details," Shannon explained. "We can make decisions quickly without corporate approval, customize solutions for unique situations, and maintain the personal relationships that matter in this business. Our technicians aren't just employees following a corporate playbook; they're neighbors invested in doing right by their community."

The company's commitment to local service extends through its Comfort Club membership program, which provides priority scheduling and maintenance benefits tailored to the specific climate challenges of Idaho. This localized approach allows for season-specific maintenance schedules and energy-saving recommendations based on regional weather patterns and utility costs.
