GAMBRILLS, MD - February 03, 2026 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Leo's Vacation Center, a prominent Maryland RV dealer, has announced its participation in the 2026 Maryland RV Show. The event takes place at the Maryland State Fairgrounds in Timonium from February 13 to 16 and February 20 to 22. This show provides an opportunity for the company to display a selection of new and used recreational vehicles from various manufacturers.

The Maryland RV Show features exhibits from multiple dealers, allowing attendees to view different models and learn about current offerings in the industry. Leo's Vacation Center plans to showcase motorhomes and towable RVs, including Class A, Class B, Class C, and Super C motorhomes, as well as travel trailers, fifth wheels, toy haulers, hybrids, pop-ups, teardrops, and destination trailers. Brands on display include Entegra Coach, Thor Motor Coach, Forest River RV, Keystone RV, Heartland, Alliance RV, and Highland Ridge.

Visitors to the Leo's Vacation Center exhibit can explore options sorted by floorplan, sleeping capacity, weight, or price. The company offers financing solutions and a Warranty Forever program for qualified purchases. Deliveries occur in a covered checkout area to protect against weather conditions. Special orders are available for models not in current inventory.

Greg Merkel, owner of Leo's Vacation Center, stated that the show aligns with the company's focus on customer needs. "Participation in the Maryland RV Show allows direct interaction with individuals interested in recreational vehicles," Merkel said. "It provides a platform to demonstrate the variety of options available for different lifestyles and budgets."

The event also coincides with recent recognition within the company. A sales associate received the 2025 Top Sales Award, reflecting internal achievements. This acknowledgment underscores the team's dedication to assisting customers in selecting appropriate RVs. The show offers a setting to share knowledge about RV maintenance and features.

Leo's Vacation Center emphasizes a straightforward approach to sales and service. The dealership avoids automated systems and prioritizes personal attention. Customers receive factual information without reliance on third-party vendors for reviews or ratings. Privacy remains a key concern, with no sharing of personal data.

In preparation for the show, the company has highlighted seasonal considerations for RV owners. Winter maintenance tips include proper storage to prevent damage from cold weather. The dealership's service department, with experience dating back decades, handles repairs and upkeep. Parts are available for various models.

Merkel added perspective on the industry's evolution. "The recreational vehicle sector has seen advancements in design and technology over the years," Merkel said. "Events like this show enable dealers to present these developments to the public."

The Maryland RV Show opens February 13th and runs through Feb. 16th, President's Day. Show hours are on Fridays and Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m., and Sundays and Monday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. It will be closed from February 17 to 19, and re-open Feb. 20-22. The location in Timonium sits between Baltimore and Washington, D.C., making it accessible for residents in the region.

Leo's Vacation Center has maintained its status as one of the top 50 RV dealers in the United States. The indoor showroom, the largest in Maryland, allows year-round viewing regardless of weather. The dealership serves a broad customer base seeking reliable vehicles for travel and leisure.

Family ownership defines the operation, with a commitment to honesty and reliability. Service history extends to nearly 50 years, supporting both sales and aftercare. The mission focuses on treating customers with respect and providing accurate details.

Attendees at the show can expect demonstrations of RV features, including interior layouts and exterior capabilities. Options for towing and motorhome driving receive attention. The exhibit aims to inform rather than pressure visitors.

Leo's Vacation Center continues to offer new inventory for the 2026 season, including models with updated amenities. The participation in the show marks an early-year engagement with the community. It builds on previous involvement in similar events.

The dealership's location in Gambrills supports local access to RV resources. Community members benefit from the proximity to expertise in the field. The show enhances visibility for Maryland-based dealers.

Leo's Vacation Center operates as a family-owned business providing recreational vehicles and related services in Maryland. Established with a service history since 1972, it has grown to become a key player in the regional market. The company holds recognition as a top national dealer and maintains the largest indoor showroom in the state.
