

Siam Legal International Addresses Estate Planning Complexities as Thailand Marriage Equality Law Marks First Anniversary

February 12, 2026

Bangkok, Thailand - February 12, 2026 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Siam Legal International, a Bangkok-based law firm specializing in international legal services, highlights the critical estate planning and wealth management considerations that have emerged following the first anniversary of Thailand's Marriage Equality law implementation. Since taking effect on January 23, 2024, the legislation has led to more than 26,000 same-sex couples registering their marriages nationwide, accounting for approximately 10 percent of all registered marriages in Thailand.

The Marriage Equality Bill grants same-sex couples identical legal rights, protections, and obligations as opposite-sex married couples. This includes equal treatment under inheritance rights, marital property regimes, and spousal decision-making authority. As a result, these changes have created both opportunities and complexities for international couples holding assets across multiple jurisdictions.

Legal marriage in Thailand directly impacts existing estate plans. In some cases, marriage may and can potentially override or invalidate previously established wills if not properly updated. For international couples, additional complexity arises when Thai marriage recognition may not automatically align with foreign succession or family law systems. This misalignment can result in disputes, probate delays, or unintended asset distribution without proper legal coordination.

"The implementation of marriage equality in Thailand represents more than a civil rights milestone; it carries significant legal and financial consequences that many couples may not fully understand," said Rex Baay, Senior Legal Advisor at Siam Legal International. "We've observed numerous cases where couples assume automatic inheritance rights without realizing that marriage can fundamentally alter their existing estate plans, particularly when assets span multiple countries."

The firm emphasizes that married couples must carefully coordinate Thai wills, foreign wills, and marital property structures to ensure their intentions are properly executed. These cross-border considerations become especially critical for expatriates, retirees, and long-term residents who maintain financial ties to their home countries while residing in Thailand.

The firm notes that common misconceptions regarding automatic inheritance, spousal rights, and asset control can lead to significant legal complications. Without proper planning, surviving spouses may face unexpected challenges accessing jointly held assets or navigating conflicting inheritance laws between Thailand and their home jurisdictions.

Siam Legal International assists clients with comprehensive estate planning services, including will drafting, marital property structuring, and cross-border legal coordination. The firm's expertise extends to addressing the unique challenges faced by international same-sex couples navigating the intersection of Thai law and foreign legal systems.
