February 17, 2026

DAVENPORT, Iowa - February 17, 2026 -
Northwest Plumbing Heating & AC has announced the expansion of its service offerings to include comprehensive central air inspection services as part of its preventive maintenance programs, addressing the growing need for proactive HVAC system care in the Quad Cities area. The expansion comes as the company continues to strengthen its position as a full-service provider of heating, cooling, and plumbing solutions for residential customers.

The enhanced service portfolio reflects the company's response to increasing customer demand for preventive maintenance options that help avoid costly emergency repairs. With over a century of experience serving the Quad Cities region since 1923, the company has identified a significant need for regular inspection services that can extend equipment lifespan and improve system efficiency.

"Regular central air inspections have become essential for homeowners looking to maintain optimal system performance and avoid unexpected breakdowns during peak cooling seasons," said Bill Durand, General Manager at Northwest Plumbing Heating & AC. "By expanding our inspection services, we're helping customers identify potential issues before they become major problems, ultimately saving them time and money while ensuring year-round comfort."

The expanded inspection services complement the company's existing plumbing services, which remain available throughout the year to address common household issues including drain cleaning, water heater repair, sewer line maintenance, and fixture replacements. This comprehensive approach allows customers to rely on a single trusted provider for multiple home service needs.

Northwest Plumbing Heating & AC has invested in advanced diagnostic equipment and comprehensive training programs for its technical staff to support the service expansion. The company's technicians now utilize cutting-edge technology to perform thorough system evaluations, identifying efficiency issues, potential failure points, and opportunities for performance optimization.

The company has also introduced Service Partner Agreements starting at $99 annually, which include scheduled maintenance visits and priority service scheduling for both heating and plumbing systems. These preventive maintenance plans are designed to help homeowners avoid emergency situations while maintaining their systems at peak efficiency.

The service expansion aligns with industry trends showing increased consumer interest in preventive maintenance and energy efficiency. According to recent industry data, regular HVAC inspections can reduce energy costs by up to 20 percent while extending equipment life by several years.

As part of its commitment to customer education, the company regularly publishes informational content that serves as a news article resource for homeowners seeking guidance on maintaining their home systems. The company maintains an active digital presence where it shares energy-saving tips, maintenance advice, and seasonal reminders about system care.

Northwest Plumbing Heating & AC operates as a member of the Nexstar Network, a national organization of independent home service contractors that maintains rigorous technical training and operational standards.
