

Longmont Braces Expands Orthodontic Consultations to Meet Growing Community Demand

February 23, 2026

LONGMONT, CO - February 23, 2026 -
Longmont Braces has announced expanded access to orthodontic consultations for patients throughout the Longmont community, addressing the increasing demand for specialized orthodontic care in the region. The practice has enhanced appointment availability to accommodate more families seeking comprehensive orthodontic treatment options.

The expansion comes as the practice continues to experience sustained growth in patient inquiries for both traditional and modern orthodontic solutions. By increasing consultation capacity, the practice aims to reduce wait times and provide more flexible scheduling options for new and existing patients seeking orthodontic evaluations.

"Our commitment to individualized treatment planning means taking the time to thoroughly educate each patient about their orthodontic options," said Dr. Stephanie Ross, orthodontist at Longmont Braces. "This expansion allows us to dedicate more comprehensive consultation sessions to understanding each patient's unique needs and developing customized treatment approaches that align with their lifestyle and goals."

The Longmont orthodontic practice offers a comprehensive range of treatment options, including traditional metal and clear braces, Invisalign clear aligner therapy, dentofacial orthopedics, surgical orthodontics, two-phase treatment plans, and temporary anchorage devices. The expanded consultation availability ensures patients can explore these various treatment modalities during detailed evaluation appointments.

The practice has observed an increase in adult patients seeking orthodontic treatment alongside their traditional pediatric patient base. This demographic shift has been driven by advances in discreet treatment options and growing awareness of the long-term health benefits of proper orthodontic care. The enhanced consultation schedule accommodates this diverse patient population, offering appointment times that work for busy professionals, students, and families.

Beyond initial consultations, the expanded capacity supports the practice's approach to patient education. Each consultation includes comprehensive diagnostic evaluations, detailed treatment planning discussions, and thorough explanations of available orthodontic solutions. This educational focus helps patients make informed decisions about their orthodontic care.

Longmont Braces, led by Dr. Stephanie Ross and Dr. Aden Peterson, has served the Longmont community with specialized orthodontic care for patients of all ages. The practice maintains a focus on combining advanced orthodontic techniques with personalized patient care, ensuring each treatment plan addresses both functional and aesthetic goals. Their comprehensive approach to orthodontic care includes not only active treatment but also long-term retention planning and post-treatment monitoring to ensure lasting results.
